

10,000 more CIA mind-control files found

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency said Friday it had discovered 10,000 additional documents on its secret research on control of human behavior, conducted from 1943 until the mid-1950s.

The discovery vastly increases the amount of information to be made public about the research projects, code-named Bluebird and Artichoke.

The Senate subcommittee on health and scientific research, which had scheduled hearings for Sept. 9 on human experiments by the CIA and the Department of Defense, Friday postponed those hearings until Sept. 20 to study the documents and other related materials newly found in a West Coast college library.

Sources close to the investigation said the new-found papers indicated that about a dozen witnesses had misled Senate investigators who are studying the CIA's secret 25-year research program.

The discovery of the records, a CIA spokesman said Friday, was made Aug. 15 in "a routine review of inactive records" designated for disposal or to be placed in archives. Two Senate committees that investigated the agency's drug testing in 1975 and 1976 were told that many records had been destroyed.

Last July, Adm. Stansfield Turner, CIA director, announced the discovery in the agency's archives of seven cases of records containing 5,000 pages of documents. He said they were overlooked in 1975 and 1976.

CIA personnel are reading and "sanitizing" the newly discovered documents for public release, the CIA spokesman said.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who is chairman of the Senate health subcommittee, said Friday the recent discovery of other documents also influenced the subcommittee's decision to postpone hearings.

These include the diaries and personal papers of the late George H. White, a former Bureau of Narcotics agent believed to have been a key figure in the CIA's drug experimentation program. These papers were found in the Foothill College Museum in Los Altos Hills.

White served with the Office of Strategic Services in World War II, then with the Bureau of Narcotics and, after retirement, as fire chief of Stinson Beach, Calif., before his death in 1975.

Notations in his papers indicate that, although he was a Bureau of Narcotics official, he arranged with Dr. Sidney Gottlieb, a pharmacologist at the CIA, to serve as a consultant to that agency on an LSD project. His notes show that he went to the CIA on May 7, 1953, to get his final security clearance and sign a contract as a consultant.

Before his transfer to San Francisco in 1955, the records show, White was involved in renting a New York City apartment under the name "Morgan Hall." His own notes and CIA documents indicate that a bank that "Hall" went to "was a little sticky about opening an account in the absence of 'references' from another bank" and found it hard to understand how he had "got by for all these years without a bank account."

VILLAGE OF LA PESCA, MEXICO, NEAR TEXAS BORDER, SHOWS RAVAGES OF 155-MPH HURRICANE WINDS

Thousands flee as hurricane rips through Mexican villages

SOTO LA MARINA, Mexico (AP) — Hurricane Anita, "big and nasty" with winds of 155 mph, veered away from Texas and roared across the marshy, thinly populated Mexican coastal plain Friday, tearing up fishing villages and gathering strength as it moved inland.

Authorities in Soto la Marina, an inland town of 2,500 and one of the two hardest-hit communities, said they knew of no deaths or injuries.

A SPOKESMAN for the military units coordinating disaster relief said: "There probably are casualties, but we have no reports of what they are for the time being."

The army evacuated 35,000 people from villages along a 240-mile stretch of Gulf of Mexico coast from the port of Tampico north to Matamoros, just south of the border city of Brownsville, Texas. Soto la Marina and similarly devastated La Pesca, a village of 1,500 people on the coast 35 miles away, are about 100 miles north of Tampico.

A few caretakers and soldiers stayed behind in La Pesca, but most of its residents were evacuated to Soto la Marina. Both villages were damaged by Hurricane Ella in 1970.

Anita, spawned in the Gulf, was headed toward Brownsville on Thursday. But it turned sharply southwest overnight and slammed ashore at 4 a.m. at La Pesca. It missed Brownsville by 25 miles and the Texas city experienced only moderate rain and winds of 45 miles an hour.

It was reported that winds fell to 100 mph after landfall, but Mexican meteorologists later said Anita was picking up more punch as it sucked hot air from the Gulf.

Anita is the season's first Atlantic hurricane. It shows a 250-mile diameter on radar and is moving at 12 mph.

"It is a big, big nasty one," said one meteorologist. Another said, "It may get worse before it gets better." He said the Tamaulipas state capital of Ciudad Victoria might be hit.

The storm was headed toward the Sierra Madre Oriental mountain range, where it was expected to spend itself.

DAMAGE WAS heavy all along the secondary highway from Soto la Marina south to Tampico. A reporter who forded water two to four feet deep on the road counted 50 buildings, from concrete block structures to wooden houses and thatched-roof hovels, collapsed or damaged.

Big trees were uprooted and utility poles were toppled along the road. Hundreds of acres of corn, some ready for harvesting, were laid waste.

"Our situation is critical," said Soto la Marina town treasurer Artemio Alfaro as he tried to clean out mud accumulated in the municipal building, whose windows were broken by wind.

"Most of the people who live on the surrounding ejidos (Mexican cooperative farms) lost their homes and most of their belongings in the hurricane," he said. "There are 11 ejidos nearby with about 200 people in each one and most of the houses there were lost."

Soto la Marina's mayor, Leonel Tavares, had said by telephone during the storm: "We are huddled here in the municipal building waiting for the storm to pass. I see right through the window, now, the wind ripping off rooftops and blowing them away like paper, and uprooting trees."

Alfaro said power was knocked out and still had not been restored by early Friday afternoon when the hurricane moved inland towards Ciudad Victoria.

The storm cut off telephone communications to La Pesca and at least nine other villages, and washed out dozens of roads or blocked them with mudslides.

Alaska gas route OK'd via Yukon

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian and U.S. negotiators reached general agreement Friday night to build a $10-billion pipeline across the Yukon to carry Alaska natural gas to the lower 48 United States.

U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger and Canadian House Leader Allan Rock, the chief negotiators, said the agreement will go to their governments early next week and declined to reveal details.

Schlesinger described it as an accord on "the fundamental outlines." Both he and MacEachen said some points remain to be worked out.

Schlesinger said it is conceivable President Carter and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will be ready to discuss the issue when they meet in Washington at the signing of the new Panama Canal treaty Wednesday.

Announcement of the agreement followed a seven-hour meeting Friday. The negotiators also had met for five hours Thursday.

The bargaining involved the route of the pipeline and a Canadian demand for $200 million from the United States to compensate for the social and environmental impact of the line.

Canada originally wanted the route through the Yukon shifted to make it easier to build a spur line to move Canadian gas in the 1980s.

Senate kills tax-relief bill; new try set

By Bob Schmidt From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Gov. Brown on Friday asked the Legislature to "go back to the drawing board" and devise a new property-tax relief plan after the proposal he had helped fashion was soundly rejected by the Senate.

The controversial $4.6-billion, five-year program was turned down by the Senate on a 16-23 vote, with 27 votes needed for passage. Earlier Friday, the Assembly had voted 58-22 to approve the measure, the product of a seven-week effort by a joint Senate-Assembly conference committee.

of the committee, Sen. Dennis Carpenter of Newport Beach and Assemblyman Jerry Lewis of Redlands almost immediately began complaining that they were being excluded from the deliberations.

Several times last month a "final agreement" was tentatively offered by the Democrats on the committee — Senators Nicholas Petrakis of Oakland and Jerry Smith of Saratoga and Assemblymen Willie Brown of San Francisco and Bill Lockyer of San Leandro — and then hastily retrieved when it became apparent that the compromises were unacceptable.

BROWN summoned reporters to his office two hours after the two houses had adjourned for the long weekend and said "I, for one, am confident we will enact a property-tax relief program."

His confidence was not shared by the Democratic leaders of the Senate and Assembly, who angrily predicted that a second conference committee to be appointed Tuesday would be unable to put together a more acceptable compromise.

THE FINAL version was sent formally to the two houses Thursday.

Friday's debates in both houses were stormy, with speakers frequently taking the unusual step of attacking colleagues by name.

Senate Republican Leader George Deukmejian of Long Beach led the attack in the upper house, saying the original objective, property-tax relief, had been negated by the insertion by liberals

School-finance bill wins easy passage; Brown still hedges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An hour after Gov. Brown's elaborate tax-relief proposal was crushed in the Senate Friday, an equally ambitious school-finance bill sailed through both legislative houses.

The five-year, $4.28-billion bill is designed to narrow the funding gap between rich and poor school districts in response to the State Supreme Court's Serrano decision.

The bill passed on votes of 67-10 in the Assembly and 32-6 in the Senate.

Brown, who had endorsed the bill earlier, wouldn't commit himself to signing it. He has said that he wants the tax and school measures considered together to avoid a future tax increase.

The school-finance bill, starting in the second year after its enactment, would shift some tax revenues from districts with high property wealth to low-wealth districts.

By the fifth year, districts with 80 percent of the state's enrollment would be raising the same amount of money for the same tax dollar — a significant reduction of the present gap, but less than the virtually complete equality ordered by the Serrano decision.

Schlesinger said it is conceivable President Carter and Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau will be ready to discuss the issue when they meet in Washington at the signing of the new Panama Canal treaty Wednesday.

Announcement of the agreement followed a seven-hour meeting Friday. The negotiators also had met for five hours Thursday.

The bargaining involved the route of the pipeline and a Canadian demand for $200 million from the United States to compensate for the social and environmental impact of the line.

Canada originally wanted the route through the Yukon shifted to make it easier to build a spur line to move Canadian gas in the 1980s.

Carter orders crisis report Black jobless rate hits record

WASHINGTON — President Carter's shaky political relations with black Americans suffered another shock Friday as the government announced that the jobless rate for blacks jumped in August to match a post-World War II record.

The increase in black unemployment from 13.2 percent in July to 14.5 percent last month shoved the overall national jobless rate up from 6.9 percent to 7.1 percent. The news produced expressions of deep concern from the president and sharp criticism of his administration by civil rights and labor leaders.

Presidential Press Secretary Jody Powell said Carter summoned Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and Chief Economic Adviser Charles Schultz to a White House meeting, where he ordered them to find out why minority unemployment was rising sharply and to recommend solutions.

Marshall was instructed to submit "tentative conclusions" before the president meets with members of the congressional black caucus next Wednesday, Powell said.

Powell said Carter was "very deeply concerned" about the new Labor Department report, which indicated that joblessness among blacks last month had matched a post-World War II high set in September 1975, during the depths of a serious depression.

Unemployment among blacks has traditionally been considerably higher than that for whites, which remained unchanged at 6.1 percent last month. But the Labor Department said the August ratio of 2.4 to

I was "unusually high."

Benjamin L. Hooks, executive director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the report raised a question of whether blacks were wrong in voting for Carter last year "in the hope that he would have taken determined and effective action to reverse the highly injurious economic policies of the Ford administration."

"We repeat our call upon President Carter today to scrap his balance-the-budget strategy at once" and to give his support to pending full employment legislation in Congress, Hooks said.

AFL-CIO President George Meany said Carter had raised the expectations of blacks, "who now have every reason to feel disappointed."

Andre Previn quits London Symphony

Combined News Services

Andre Previn will give up his post as principal conductor of the London Symphony Orchestra in 1979, an orchestra spokesman announced Friday.

The Berlin-born American conductor has been principal conductor since 1968 but in the last few years there has been dissension over him in the ranks of the self-governing orchestra.

The 48-year-old Previn, who rose to fame in the 1950s as a jazz pianist and composer of film scores, was not immediately available for comment on his decision.

Previn and his American actress wife, Mia Farrow, live in the English countryside with their five children.

He is to leave the orchestra in August 1979, although he is expected to appear as guest conductor thereafter, an orchestra spokesman said.

"He wants to widen his career and accept the many invitations from other orchestras," the spokesman added.

Previn is currently music director of the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, succeeding William Steinberg in 1976.

He recently scored a brilliant success with the London orchestra at the Salzburg festival.

Previn is a sought-after television and recording personality and his popular image has worked both for and against him with the London orchestra. It sold records and brought box office appeal, but some members of the orchestra reportedly said as early as 1975 that he was often ill-prepared.

Previn was music director of the Houston Symphony Orchestra from 1967-1969 and is a frequent guest conductor with leading orchestras worldwide.

ANDRE PREVIN, pictured here during rehearsals in Pittsburgh last spring, will step down as principal conductor of the London Symphony next August. He currently heads the Pittsburgh orchestra as well.

Elvis-snatchers wanted $10 million

A man who was willing to pay $10,000 for the theft of Elvis Presley's body was planning to demand $10 million ransom for its return, a police informant says.

Ronnie Lee Adkins told reporters that the original plan called for stealing the body from the Memphis Funeral Home on Aug. 16, the day Presley died.

But heavy police security prompted a change in plans to a break-in at Presley's mausoleum, Adkins said.

Adkins, 26, is facing trespassing charges after being arrested near Presley's crypt early Monday. Also arrested and facing the same charges were Raymond M.

Green, 25, and Bruce Eugene Nelson, 30. All are from Memphis.

Police Director E. Winslow Chapman, who said earlier this week that he doubts Adkins' story about a body-snatching plot, has nevertheless recommended dismissal of the charge against the informant.

Adkins said that when he, Green and Nelson drove to the cemetery, a late-model Oldsmobile was parked nearby. Adkins said he was told that the lone occupant of the car was to pay them $40,000.

Adkins said the unidentified man was to hold the body and demand $10 million ransom for its return.

Martha memorial

A drive to raise money for a monument to the late Martha Mitchell was announced Friday in Pine Bluff, Ark., her hometown, on what would have been her 59th birthday.

Mrs. Mitchell, the former Martha Beall, was married to former U.S. Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, now in federal prison for his role in the Watergate burglary and cover-up.

Mrs. Mitchell died May 31, 1976. She was buried a few days later in Bellwood Cemetery here.

The Pine Bluff Commercial newspaper called for the fund drive in an editorial. The paper said Mrs. Mitchell had "the courage to tell and live the truth as she saw it."

Carter 'aging'

In the view of his old friend and confidant, Charles Kirbo, the strains of his job are showing on President Carter.

"He's changing in his appearance," Kirbo told an audience in Tallahassee, Fla. "He's a little grayer. He's getting older a little fast."

There were good reasons for it, said Kirbo, who asked: "How would you like to get up every day and be faced with the Middle East, Africa, Korea, China, Greece, the Panama Canal, balancing the budget, energy, unemployment, illegal aliens, and retirement programs?"

All that aside, Kirbo said, he hasn't heard the president complaining.

Drug-resistant strain of pneumonia found

Combined News Services

ATLANTA — A new strain of pneumonia, resistant to most known antibiotics, is a major concern to world health authorities, the national Center for Disease Control said Friday.

The new strain has been seen only in hospitals in Durban and Johannesburg, South Africa, so far.

It is a derivation of pneumococcal pneumonia — the most common bacterial pneumonia, prevalent throughout the world.

The CDC said that if the new strain establishes a stronghold, the number of useful drugs will be narrowed considerably.

Sioux land claims

WASHINGTON — Sioux Indians plan to file a court claim for the return of all or part of five states that encompass their homeland, but will settle for $30 billion as an alternative, American Indian Movement leader Russell Means said Friday.

The Sioux want the federal government to return to them of all of North Dakota, South Dakota and Nebraska and portions of Montana and Wyoming, Means told a news conference.

The $30-billion alternative, he said, would be in compensation for the government's alleged violation of the Ft. Laramie Treaty of 1868.

Male 'pill' reported

DETROIT — Seattle doctor C. Alvin Paulsen told a Detroit medical gathering Friday he has developed a male birth control pill that apparently has no side effects.

The regimen — actually a combination of a daily pill and a monthly shot — is only in the early testing stages and is too expensive for general use, but Paulsen believes a cheaper version can be found.

Israel growth plan aired

JERUSALEM — A plan to more than double Israel's Jewish population by setting up strips of new settlements in the occupied West Bank was presented publicly Friday by Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon.

"I'm talking in terms of millions of settlers," Sharon said. He added that when fully implemented in phases over the next 20 years, it would boost Israel's current 3.5 million Jewish population to "six to eight million" Jews by attracting immigrants to a more secure Israel.

WASHINGTON — Union chiefs in six countries pledged support Friday for the AFL-CIO boycott of J.P. Stevens Co.'s textile products and criticized Stevens' labor policies.

Earlier this week, the U.S. Court of Appeals in New York cited Stevens for contempt a second time and said the company's violation of the rights of workers to organize was "massive, cynical and flagrantly contemptuous."

Fewer U.S. students

WASHINGTON — Total enrollment in the nation's schools and colleges will drop slightly this school year to 60.3 million students, even though total costs will increase $12 billion over last year, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare predicted Friday. Smith blasts plan

SALISBURY, Rhodesia — Prime Minister Ian Smith on Friday branded the U.S.-British transition plan for Rhodesia a "cunning scheme" to turn power over to Communist-armed guerrillas and charged that the British were seeking "revenge" for his break with Britain.

Nonconforming

I am interested in buying property in Bellflower that is zoned M-1 (industrial) but has a residence on it. I am told that a nonconforming use permit, good for 99 years, goes with the property. I have asked the real estate agent and the city of Bellflower, but cannot get a satisfactory answer as to what this means. Please help me. Mrs. F.A., Bellflower.

There is no property in Bellflower with a nonconforming use status good for 99 years, said Ron Whitney, assistant planner for the city. The property you are interested in, now being used as a kennel, will retain its nonconforming use until 1982 only if you also use it as a kennel. If you buy the property and do not operate a kennel there for six months, the nonconforming use automatically expires and cannot be renewed, Whitney said. If you wish to operate another type of business on the property, it will have to conform to current zoning laws.

In 1962 the city of Bellflower rezoned the entire city. At that time, existing businesses that did not conform to the newly adopted zoning regulations were allowed to stay in business under the nonconforming use provision. Nonconforming commercial enterprises were given until 1982 to stay in business at their present locations. Nonconforming residences were given until 2002. When the nonconforming use expires, it will be up to the City Council to decide if businesses and homes will be given an extension or if they will be required to conform to present zoning laws.

Dowser

Can you tell me if there is a dowsing organization in California? I have read about dowsers who can locate such things as water, oil, mineral deposits and buried treasure. I am in need of the service of a dowser to help me locate one of these treasures. T.L., Compton.

The Dowsters of Los Angeles County meet the first Saturday of each month from 1 to 4 p.m. in Room 103 of Holmes Hall at Los Angeles City College, 855 N. Vermont Ave. However, because of the Labor Day weekend and members' vacations, the next meeting will not be held until Oct. 15. For information, you can contact the group's chairman, Vince Wiberg, 2159 Fern Dell Place, Los Angeles, 461-9702.

You also can join the national organization, the American Society of Dowsters, Danville, Va. 05828, for $12 a year. The membership fee includes a subscription to their quarterly digest, the American Dowser.

There is virtually no scientific support of dowsing, the art of locating water and other valuable resources with a forked divining rod. But dedicated dowsers maintain they can locate anything from water wells to missing persons with their V-shaped sticks.

Dowsters of Los Angeles and Orange counties are holding a free, all-day seminar Oct. 23 at Glendale Community College, 1500 N. Verdugo Road, Glendale, starting at 10 a.m. There will be speeches, displays and instructions on dowsing and making your own dowsing instruments. The meeting is open to the public.

SOUND OFF

While shopping recently in several of the department stores in Long Beach and North Long Beach, I have been told that their restrooms are closed to the public and I would have to find other facilities. Some stores have buzzer locks which require a salesperson to activate for admittance. This makes a hardship for old people and families with children, particularly. I think something should be done about this. J.D., North Long Beach.

O.C. woman gets $250,000 in medical malpractice suit

A Huntington Beach woman has been awarded $250,000 from Westminster Community Hospital and the estate of Dr. Robert Trace of Garden Grove in a medical malpractice suit.

A Santa Ana Superior Court jury was told that in May 1974, Dr. Trace ordered an enema for his patient, Barbara Harvey, 41, while she was recovering from a hysterectomy, and that her colon ruptured. A long series of medical and surgical care followed. Mrs. Harvey had sought $500,000.

Dr. Trace was slain Aug. 13, 1975, when he apparently surprised an intruder, who beat him to death. Police later arrested a karate expert who was convicted of slaying the physician in a murder-for-hire pact. A former business partner of Dr. Trace also was convicted.

Pump failures stress water lifelines hazard

By Walt Murray
Staff Writer

The fragility of Southern California's water lifelines was demonstrated last week as pump failures cut the flow of water through the Colorado River Aqueduct by more than a billion gallons.

While the loss won't have an immediate effect on the Southland's water supply, it reduced emergency storage reserves that could be badly needed if the drought continues, according to John Lauten, general manager of the Metropolitan Water District (MWD).

"The recent problems on the aqueduct should remind everyone that we are dependent on water that has to be imported over vast distances," Lauten said. "It's something we can't afford to waste."

Despite the loss, MWD spokesman Joel Schwarz said chances of a long shutdown of the aqueduct are "very remote."

Long Beach gets about half its water through the MWD-operated aqueduct. The rest comes from wells that tap groundwater.

A series of pump failures, which began Aug. 20, resulted in the shutdown of the aqueduct for four hours at one time, Schwarz said.

He said the aqueduct, which brings water 240 miles across the desert from the Colorado River to Lake Mathews, was back in full operation Thursday.

Most of the lost billion gallons stayed in the Colorado River and flowed into the Gulf of California. Some spilled into the desert as reservoirs backed up and overflowed.

The pump failures, which all took place at the Eagle Mountain Pumping Plant near the community of Desert Center, were caused by a short circuit, Lauten said.

"After repairing the short circuit, our repair crews were successively faced with separate problems on four individual pumps that forced us to operate the aqueduct on an eight-pump flow for the next 12 days," Lauten said.

The MWD has been running all nine pumps at each of its five pumping stations since last March 1 in an effort to get as much water as possible into Southern California reservoirs. The aqueduct is being run at a rate "beyond its design capacity," Lauten said.

The effort began when the Southland stopped receiving northern water it usually gets through the California Aqueduct of the State Water Project. That water was needed in the drought-stricken north, water officials said.

Because of last week's pumping problems, over a billion gallons — almost the amount that the aqueduct pumps in one day — wasn't pumped into reservoirs, Lauten said. The aqueduct normally pumps about 1.2 billion gallons a day.

Since March 1, one other major shutdown and 15 minor shutdowns have caused a loss of almost four billion gallons of water, almost enough to supply a city the size of Whittier or Costa Mesa for a year, Lauten said.

"The problems we had on the aqueduct the past two weeks only reinforce the need for all of Southern California to maintain the recent high level of water conservation," Lauten said.

Transfusions refused for Caesarean birth

Associated Press

A Caesarean delivery, in which obstetricians cut the mother's abdominal and uterine walls, has been scheduled in Fountain Valley for a woman who says she will refuse blood transfusions for herself and her child.

Linda Okonewski, 21, a Jehovah's Witness, fled Florida for California after a judge ordered that all Florida hospitals and physicians give whatever treatment is necessary.

Mrs. Okonewski says her religious beliefs prevent her from accepting transfusions.

At Fountain Valley Hospital Friday, Dr. Elliott Zaleznik said Mrs. Okonewski, of West Palm Beach, Fla., would be admitted Monday and scheduled for a Tuesday delivery.

According to a hospital spokeswoman, Zaleznik said he didn't anticipate problems.

"All he would say was that, as of now, he expects no problems and expects it to be a normal delivery," she said.

Meanwhile, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Broward County Circuit Judge Stephen Booher heard testimony from the woman's former doctors at a day-long hearing.

Mrs. Okonewski's former obstetrician, Dr. Warren Greenberg of Plantation, testified that "if the baby loses a cupful of blood, possible death could result."

Greenberg and Dr. Michael Halle, also of Plantation, who was to be the baby's pediatrician, testified that both mother and child could be in imminent danger if any loss of blood occurred and a transfusion could not be administered. They also said the child could suffer brain damage if a transfusion was necessary but not given.

After hearing testimony from the two physicians and others, Booher issued no formal ruling, but said because the pregnancy is so far advanced the baby is a "fetus with independent life and rights under the law."

As a result, Booher said the unborn child "is in need of care for its well-being."

He said he had asked California courts to provide the kind of supervision needed to make sure that the unborn child and mother receive the medical care necessary for their protection. Booher said the California courts indicated that they would take the steps as the situation develops.

Hospital officials in Florida have said that Mrs. Okonewski has a rare blood type which could complicate any transfusions.

But Brown sees 'glimmer of hope'

Peripheral Canal voted down again

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A bill authorizing the Peripheral Canal was defeated for the second time this week in an Assembly committee hearing Friday, but Gov. Brown says he still has "a glimmer of hope."

Assemblyman Stan Statham, R-Chico, who could break the impasse if he switches from no to yes, said he has a meeting scheduled Tuesday with Brown and is ready to vote yes if he gets amendments he wants.

Brown said had "a very friendly discussion" Friday with Statham but that the amendments Statham discussed were "somewhat far afield... there's only room for a small step."

Neither Statham nor Brown discussed the precise amendments Statham requested, except that they involve timber restrictions along the free-flowing or "wild rivers" on California's north coast.

"I think there's a glimmer of hope," Brown said. "This may be the last chance for a quite a while. Supporters will have to try again in 1979, because 1978 may be an inopportune time to evaluate the Peripheral Canal, given the elections."

The 3-3 vote Friday of the Assembly Water, Parks and Wildlife Committee was an exact repeat of Wednesday's vote and triggered an angry exchange of personal insults between two committee members.

At stake is a $3.5-billion water project that includes four major new Northern California reservoirs and the Peripheral Canal, which would carry the estimated 600,000 acre-feet of water from the north around the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta to water users in the San Joaquin Valley and Southern California.

But Statham said after the session that he is willing to switch his vote if he gets amendments changing the California Wild Rivers law to make it easier for timber firms to harvest near the state's remaining free-flowing rivers.

Statham conceded in answer to questions from reporters that the timbering amendment he wants may not have much to do with the issue of the Peripheral

Canal or the other projects in the bill.

"I don't care whether it has to do with the bill or not," Statham said. "Since Northern California has so little political power in the Legislature, I see an opportunity to give the north a birthday present, and here it is."

He said that after his scheduled meeting with Brown — who negotiated terms of the compromise bill with environmentalists and various water groups — "I'll know if I've changed from a 51 percent no to a 51 percent yes."

Century Freeway work to resume when suits settled

Construction of the Century Freeway will proceed as soon as environmental lawsuits are settled, the director of the State Department of Transportation (Caltrans) said Friday.

Director Adriana Gianturco made the surprise disclosure at a meeting of the State Highway Commission in Santa Monica, scheduled to consider the 1978-79 highway budget.

The freeway would run through several Southland cities, linking the San Gabriel River (605) Freeway with Los Angeles International Airport.

Plans to build the freeway were frozen in 1972 by a court injunction forcing the state to provide an environmental impact report (EIR), based on a suit by the city of Hawthorne and conservation groups.

Before the suit, the state already had begun purchasing property along the 17-mile route from Norwalk to El Segundo. The state owns more than 2,500 vacant houses along the route, and there have been many complaints about vandalism and crime at the houses.

Gov. Brown had vigorously opposed the freeway as too costly, but Gianturco's comments indicated that Brown now has given his blessing to the project.

"The court will get our Caltrans EIR later this month," Gianturco said Friday. "We're ready to proceed (after the court ruling)."

The Federal Highway Commission also must approve the EIR. The $700-million project will be 90 percent federally funded.

with the balance made up by the state.

The freeway will have eight lanes for cars and two for bus transit.

Vigil D. Waters, chairman of the Southern California Transportation Action Committee, sent a statement Friday to Brown urging him to sign an Assembly bill ordering Caltrans to raze abandoned houses on the land it has acquired along the proposed freeway route.

Brown backs bill tightening Medi-Cal rules

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Brown endorsed a bill Friday to tighten eligibility standards for needy persons on Medi-Cal, which is faced with a possible cost overrun of up to $200 million.

The overrun is in the medically indigent and medically needy programs, but the tightened standards would affect all of Medi-Cal, which has 2.8 million patients.

One provision would increase the state's power to reduce non-emergency treatment, which could include some prenatal care and most abortions and sterilizations.

The proposal is contained in amendments to a bill by Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, scheduled for hearing in the Assembly Ways and Means Committee Tuesday.

EARLIER this week, Roy Bell, state finance director, reported an unexpected rise this year in Medi-Cal services to non-welfare recipients who qualify for the program.

Bell estimated the extra cost at somewhere between $115 million and $200 million. He said the finance department cannot explain the increase, but believes it is due in part to somewhat looser eligibility standards.

The medically indigent are low-income, mostly unmarried persons between 18 and 64. The medically needy are aged, blind or disabled persons who aren't poor enough for welfare but can't afford medical care.

Keene, chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, said that "unfortunately drastic remedies" are needed to pay the increased costs.

His bill would increase the state's power to reduce payments to doctors and hospitals for elective treatments, defined as any procedure that isn't needed to save a patient's life.

Another provision would give the state health director authority to eliminate an entire category of Medi-Cal care, such as dental services or podiatry.

Proposal would involve busing 100,000 pupils

L.A. middle-, upper-grade integration eyed

Associated Press

Desegregation of middle- and upper-school grades only, with busing a possibility for more than 100,000 children, is being considered by district planners, Los Angeles school board president Howard Miller said Friday.

Meantime, Monroe Price, a court-appointed referee who is overseeing the integration plan, indicated he favored the proposal.

In his seventh report on the board's progress, Price wrote favorably of the "middle-school" plan and offered no criticism of it.

Miller confirmed that proposals reported Friday by the Los Angeles Times, quoting unnamed sources, were among several under consideration.

"There are a series of concepts being presented for hypothetical planning," Miller said. "It's premature to call them plans. They still have to be fleshed out and costed out."

Miller said no single concept was being given more attention by the board than any other, although he noted that the format for a similar "middle-school" plan was approved in Dallas, Tex.

"One of things I and the other board members have resisted is making any comments on where we stand until the planning process is done," Miller said. "And I'd like to continue doing that."

The Times reported that the proposed desegregation would start out on a voluntary basis, with mandatory backup. The plans would exclude kindergarten and grades one through three. It would depend on voluntary "magnet schools" in senior high school, the sources said.

The 12 geographical administrative areas into which the district is now divided would be replaced by "educational planning units" that combine schools from widely scattered parts of the city.

It was not known if the middle-school approach would satisfy Superior Court Judge Paul Egly, who rejected the board's first plan July 6, claiming the limited, part-time proposal was constitutionally inadequate. He set Oct. 3 as the deadline for a new plan.

The middle-school proposal was described by one source as a compromise between the board's original plan and a complete desegregation plan for all 12 grades, wanted by the American Civil Liberties Union, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the Los Angeles Center for Law and Justice, representing plaintiffs in the case.

Sources described a "major technical disagreement" within the staff on whether the plan would affect all of the district's elementary and junior high school students. A possibility apparently exists that some mainly black schools in South Central Los Angeles and some predominantly white schools at the western end of the San Fernando Valley might be excluded.

Grades four through eight and five through nine apparently were selected to avoid the necessity of busing very young children. In addition, district administrators reportedly feel the dispersal of students through desegregation of the early grades would result in a loss of federal and state compensatory education funds and would make it more difficult to provide bilingual education.

Other proposals being considered are for some kind of metropolitan plan — a program to mix Los Angeles students with those of adjoining districts.

Asst. School Supt. William Lucas conceded at a meeting Thursday night that opposition from other districts is a major obsta-

'Bad publicity' means end of liquor board's drinking

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Because of bad publicity, the state's top liquor control official said Friday there won't be any more "controlled drinking experiments" for his staff.

Baxter Rice, director of the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, said press reports of the first two experiments — in Laguna Beach and San Diego — were so "out of context" that he had abandoned the program.

Rice, a former CIA employee and seminary classmate of Gov. Brown, defended the experiments as giving his staff a better idea of the effects of alcohol.

"It personalized abstract concepts," he said.

About 20 ABC staffers attended each of the first two experiments as part of two-day training seminars. Rice said the drinking sessions were just one facet of the program.

The trainees gathered in a hotel room in the evening and were given enough drinks — four or so — to boost their blood alcohol level to no higher than .10 on a breathalyzer. He said at that level a driver is presumed under the influence.

After the session, the participants were required to stay in the hotel and "sleep it off."

Rice said such drinking experiments were endorsed by many experts in the field.

"It's not something I dreamt up myself, it's a technique worked out by professionals," he said.

The experiments first came to light when Sheriff John Duffy of San Diego refused to supply a breathalyzer and a deputy for one session.

Duffy wrote ABC district administrator Pete Case that he could not join "in what appears to be a ripoff of the local taxpayers."

"Over a period of 24 years in law enforcement, I have become acquainted with the direct effects of alcoholic consumption," he said. "Very simply, drinking alcohol will cause intoxication."

cle to that kind of proposal.

"But there may be other districts in a similar situation to ours that could benefit," said Dr. Lucas. He mentioned Downey, Palos Verdes and border districts in Orange and Ventura counties.

L.A. users accepting water cuts

Associated Press

More than 80 percent of residential customers are following the mandatory 10 percent water use cutback imposed by the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power, the department said Friday.

Of the 13,511 customers who have received their first bimonthly bills under the water conservation ordinance, 19 percent used too much water between July 1 and Wednesday and received their first warning letters along with their bills.

Those who exceeded their allotment have until the next bimonthly bill to comply with the cutback or be fined.

THE department has about 572,000 residential customers, and bills are mailed daily.

Commercial and industrial customers, who are billed every month, didn't do as well as the residential water users, said the department's water conservation coordinator, Jerry Derry. Out of 1,631 business customers billed so far, only 65.7 percent remained within their allotment.

More than half the 561 industrial customers who didn't comply with the cutback were second-time offenders. The department has a total of 36,000 commercial and industrial customers.

Under the conservation ordinance, the second warning is delivered in person by a department representative. The customer also pays a penalty of 15 percent of his total water bill, plus $1 for every 748 gallons used in excess of the allowed amount.

Howard Baker keeps a presidential profile

New York Times Service
MARYVILLE, Tenn. — Joining the gathering of Tennessee Republicans who were having punch and cookies outside the courthouse, the woman told the Senator she had driven here from California to meet him because she admired him on television and thought he should be president. He chuckled and thanked her.
 On Monday in Nashville, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. was greeted by guffaws when he told reporters, "I have no presidential campaign," so he amended it to: "Right now there is no presidential campaign."

 He has not even formally announced for next year's run for a third term in the Senate, but the presidency keeps coming up and he does not really discourage the talk. He is wrapped up in the phenomenon successfully exploited by the man he wants to run against, President Carter, the four-year continuous presidential campaign.

One associate said Baker even considered emulating Carter by not running for re-election and having two whole years to do nothing but campaign across the country.
 But the exposure Baker gets as Senate minority leader outweighs the advantages of that course. Far more than most of his colleagues, he is asked by constituents about national and international issues, not about a decrepit bridge or the local effect of federal environmental rules. His aides say this focus is new since he was elected minority leader in January and became a frequently televised Republican spokesman on major issues.

 Baker said in an interview that for the most part he concentrated on his Senate duties and his re-election, with the only exception being regular meetings with some key party professionals. These include the former national chairman, Ray Bliss of Ohio, long-time insiders like Bryce N. Harlow and Charles K. McWhorter, and John P. Sears and Lyn Nofziger, key members of Ronald Reagan's 1976 staff.

 As Baker travels through Tennessee, he criticizes Carter frequently on issues like energy and welfare. He accuses the president of mishandling relations with Congress and being too vocal but clumsy in foreign policy. But his tone sounds more sorrowful than gleefully partisan, and he is not emphasizing the difficulties of Bert Lance, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, and takes no stand on the Panama Canal.

He needles Carter for efforts to find a prominent Tennessee Democrat to run against him for the Senate in 1978, a so far unsuccessful effort. But in the interview he conceded that it might be useful for his further ambitions to take on a challenger with an obvious Carter label next year.
 ONE THING that sets him apart from most Republican politicians, especially in the South, is his appeal to black voters. He got more than a third of the state's black vote in his 1972 Senate race. But he warned a group of blacks in his Nashville office Monday that nationally, and in much of the state, too, "the Republican Party has been so far out, so long, that we don't even have any sensing mechanism" to learn how to appeal to blacks. He asked for their help.

 The national implications are obvious. Around the country Republicans rarely get half the share of black votes that Baker got in 1972, and overwhelming black support was essential to Carter's victory in 1976.
 Baker said he had some "very exact ideas" on how the Republicans could attract more black support nationally. He contended, "The time is right for Republicans to put together something that would attract the black vote, to be of service to blacks."
 He would not go into detail, but earlier, in an interview at the office of The Clarksville Leaf-Chronicle, he gave one hint. Noting that welfare affected blacks and other minorities most, he said it was time not for tinkering with the system but for "very different, even radical approaches to the elimination of poverty."

One other issue that confronted him again and again this week bears on those presidential plans — the Panama Canal. At news conferences it always came up. As he walked to his chartered plane, a nearby pilot stopped work to come up and tell him, "Don't let them give away the canal." Elderly women at a reception in Franklin came through a receiving line to urge him to save the canal and pressed letters arguing the case into his hand.
 Steadily, he replied, "I have decided not to decide," and to wait to hear testimony before the Foreign Relations Committee.
 Baker can turn the issue aside for a time, as he does when he refuses to say if he thinks Lance

Claim 3 of 4 high honors Women top AF graduates

WILLIAMS AIR FORCE BASE, Ariz. (AP) — The first women to take Air Force jet pilot training won three of the top four awards at graduation ceremonies Friday.
 Capt. Connie J. Engel of Long Beach, Calif., won the Air Training Command Commander's Award for overall excellence in the class of 10 women and 36 men. She also received the Officer Training Award, presented for military bearing and leadership.
 Capt. Mary E. Donahue of Boston earned the Academic Award. She missed just one of 365 questions over a year of examinations.
 The Flying Training

Award, which goes to the best pilot in the class, was shared by two men: Lts. Jerry L. Free of Chatsworth, Calif., and Fred M. Clemovitz of Johnston City, Ill.
 "The all-male pilot force has been a long-standing tradition," said Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of Air Training Command at Randolph Air Force Base, Tex. "Today marks the end of that tradition and the beginning of another tradition — men and women flying together in defense of freedom."
 The women, who began training more than a year ago and accumulated 210 flying hours and 750 class hours each, were assigned to non-combat flying and training duties at several U.S. Air Force bases and on Guam.

Crude-oil prices unfrozen; gasoline to go up slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Administration announced Friday it will let U.S. crude oil prices start rising again, ending a 14-month freeze.
 The agency scheduled price increases in September, October and November which, it said, would add up to no more than two-tenths of a cent per gallon on gasoline and other refined products.
 After November, said the FEA, crude oil prices will be allowed to rise in step with inflation.
 THE ALLOWED PRICE increases are less than permitted by law, but the FEA announcement said bigger increases would only give oil producers "windfall profits" without stimulating additional production.
 The price ceilings now being "unfrozen" apply to crude oil brought into production some time ago, while the latest domestic oil discoveries are permitted prices equivalent to unregulated world market prices.
 Under a law passed by Congress, the FEA was required to limit U.S. domestic oil to a composite price of $7.66 per barrel as of February 1976 and could allow it to increase afterward by as much as 10 percent a year.
 The FEA said the law would allow a composite price of $8.99 per barrel by next November, but the FEA decision would limit the actual composite price to about $8.52 per barrel to avoid windfall profits for the companies.

 Instead of setting a single price of $7.66 for all oil produced in the United States, the FEA divided it into three "tiers": "old" oil was allowed a price of $5.25 per barrel; "new," meaning more recent, oil got $11.28 per barrel, and "new-new," meaning oil just entering production, was allowed world market prices as an incentive to exploration and development of new supplies.
 But the FEA found in mid-1976 that its estimates of the amounts of oil in each category were a little off base, making the actual composite price higher than intended.
 To make up for this unintended overcharge, the FEA froze the two specific price ceilings on "old" and "new" oil, and even rolled back the "new oil" price 65 cents per barrel early this year.
 Now, the FEA said, the error has been corrected and the price can be allowed to rise again, in keeping with inflation.
 The FEA said the price of "old" oil, which was $5.17 per barrel in August, can go to $5.20 as of Sept. 1, $5.23 in October and $5.26 in November.
 The price of "new" oil, $10.97 in August, goes to $11.23 in September, $11.49 in October and $11.75 in November.

Opposition stirs on order to open 25-year FBI files

WASHINGTON (AP) — Justice Department lawyers may ask a federal judge to modify an order demanding 25 years of FBI records of warrantless wiretaps, mail openings and break-ins, a department source said Friday.
 "That would be the first step, but no final decision has been made," said an official familiar with the case.
 U.S. District Court Judge Kevin Duffy of New York issued the order Aug. 2 after attorneys for former FBI supervisor John J. Kearney said they needed the material to prepare Kearney's defense against charges of conspiracy, illegal wiretapping and mail opening.
 Kearney's demands for government documents in the pre-trial discovery process apparently were discussed during a private eight-minute conference Friday involving the judge, two government lawyers and Kearney's attorney, Edward Bennett Williams.
 The conference was held in the judge's chambers and the proceedings were not made public. A department spokesman said only that the discussion involved "the scheduling of the trial and matters pertaining to discovery."
 The spokesman said "no trial date was set." The trial tentatively has been slated to begin in mid-October.
 Department lawyers are inclined to oppose the wide-ranging discovery order for two major reasons, the source said. Some officials believe national security would preclude disclosing records of FBI break-ins at foreign embassies and mail-opening and wiretaps directed against suspected foreign spies, the source said.
 In addition, he added, "Can you imagine how long it would take to pull together the records of 25 years?"

The judge's order requires all such files from 1947 through 1972, the years Kearney served with the bureau.
 The FBI has been unable to produce documents quickly in response to similar orders in other cases. After four years of litigation and several court orders, the Socialist Workers Party still is seeking numerous documents from the bureau.
 ALTHOUGH Kearney's lawyers have declined to discuss their reasons for seeking the files, others involved in his defense have argued that Kearney did nothing more than follow the bureau's accepted practices during the 1960s and early 1970s.
 The attorneys may be seeking the records to show that what Kearney did was commonplace and had the approval of his superiors in the FBI and the Justice Department.
 Kearney was indicted April 7 on charges stemming from allegedly illegal efforts to gather intelligence about Weather Underground fugitives in the early 1970s.
 The indictment was the first — and so far the only — criminal charge the government has brought in the investigation of allegedly illegal FBI tactics.
 Soon after authorizing Kearney's indictment, Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell said he was dissatisfied with the first round of the department probe and ordered a more extensive investigation focusing on high-level FBI officials who may have authorized the break-ins, mail opening and wiretaps without court warrants.
 Bell has indicated recently that he may be near a decision about whether to pursue the prosecution against Kearney and seek other indictments in the case.

Envoy's first callers: Cubans trying to leave

HAVANA (AP) — The new U.S. diplomatic office opened for business here Friday, with more than two dozen Cubans and one American as its first customers, seeking help in getting to the United States.

The agreement between the United States and Cuba to exchange diplomats for the first time in 16 years and open offices, formally called "interest sections," in each other's capital is an effort to improve communications.

The Cuban diplomatic office in Washington, D.C., opened Thursday.

Many of the Cuban citizens who appeared at the U.S. diplomatic office Friday carried documents showing their government had denied them permission to leave the country.

"I am political prisoner," one man repeated in broken English as he accosted reporters with a letter of appeal to U.S. officials. Another said, "They tell us capitalism is bad. I want to see for myself."

Outside the embassy, a Cuban observer watched the coming and going and told one of the applicants, "You are going to be very popular."

In one corner of the embassy lobby sat tall, lanky Joseph Keith Rowe, 41, who described himself as an American shrimp boat captain who has been living in Cuba — against his will — for seven years.

Rowe said he was seized by Cuban authorities after coming here in 1970, hoping to get a visa to North Korea where he might "learn what I could" about the capture of the U.S. Navy spy ship Pueblo.

He never got the visa, and has been living a virtual prisoner in Havana, Rowe said. He said he lives with 12 other Americans who came here as hijackers.

"They said I was a boatjacker, but I was not," Rowe said.

A former resident of Fort Myers, Fla., Rowe said his room, board and meager spending money is provided by the Cubans. He said he repeatedly has been thwarted in efforts to return home.

Rowe said the Swiss, who managed U.S. affairs here in the absence of a U.S. embassy, required him to have an airplane ticket with a final U.S. destination. But at the same time, he said, the Cubans would not allow anyone to leave with a ticket to the United States — even through another country.

"Do I get depressed? Sure I do," he said. "If I didn't I wouldn't be rational and normal."

After mulling about the lobby for a time, the Cubans were invited into an office where embassy official Thomas Holliday explained requirements for persons wishing to leave Cuba for the United States.

Among other things, he told them that more than 16 years without diplomatic relations means the Cuban and U.S. governments do not always agree on the citizenship status of certain individuals.

As far as could be determined, none of those who appeared at the doorstep of the old U.S. embassy were among the 84 families of U.S. citizens that President Fidel Castro has agreed to let go.

During a visit to Cuba last month by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, Castro said he would permit the Cuban wives and children of 84 U.S. citizens to go to the United States.

The first priority of Lyle Lane, who heads the interest office, and his staff is the repatriation of the 84 families. But Lane conceded Thursday that it has been more difficult than expected to locate the families and determine their wishes.

Before the Americans took over, the Swiss had located only 22 families who wanted to go and 20 others which did not. The other 42 families either had not responded or were still being sought, officials said.

While Lane expressed hope that an airplane might come to Cuba within a few days to pick up the families of Americans, other U.S. sources said it probably would take considerably longer.

But no secrets stolen, says Moscow envoy

'Looting' during embassy fire

New York Times Service

MOSCOW — U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon conceded Friday that "some looting" occurred when Soviet firemen quelled a nightlong fire that ravaged the normally restricted upper floors of the U.S. embassy here a week ago.

But Toon, meeting with American correspondents, said he still believed that classified material in the embassy had not been compromised. A spot check had been made of the normally top secret communications and records center, he said, and nothing apparently was missing.

The ambassador also said that Soviet fire fighters who entered the building during the blaze were left unescorted for "no more than 20 minutes." Embassy personnel monitoring their movements were pulled out when Toon was advised before dawn that there was a danger of structural collapse. Last Saturday, after the fire, newsmen had inferred from Toon's chronology that the firemen were alone in the chancery for some time.

Inspection later of the top four floors where classified files are located showed that "chances of a breach of security were even less than I anticipated," Toon said.

Two American engineers who flew in last weekend to inspect the building reported it was still structurally sound. The first priority is building a new roof and clearing away rubble before restoring the offices. Toon estimated it would take three or four months to restore the embassy to its former condition.

Vietnam-Cambodia clash confirmed, journalist says

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A Swedish journalist who recently visited Vietnam said Friday that high-ranking officials admitted there is fighting going on between Vietnam and its Communist neighbor, Cambodia.

His account supported increasingly frequent reports by intelligence and diplomatic sources of clashes along several stretches of the Vietnamese-Cambodian frontier.

The journalist, who asked that his name not be used, and two other Swedish newsmen were taken by Vietnamese authorities last month to within 10 miles of the frontier near Loc Ninh, 75 miles north of Saigon. The journalist said he heard what sounded like sporadic artillery fire but didn't see any combat or Vietnamese troop movements.

The Vietnamese officials called the border fighting "skirmishes" and expressed regret over the incidents, he said. One high-ranking Communist Party official referred to the 700-mile-long border as the "mini-Ussuri," a reference to the tense river frontier between China and the Soviet Union.

Although sources have given varying accounts of the scope of the fighting, there is general agreement that several thousand troops on each side have been involved in some battles and that the Vietnamese, using tanks, artillery and aircraft, have on occasion struck well inside Cambodian territory.

Intelligence sources say there was heavy fighting on the border in the Mekong River delta between last March and May, and there have been reports of clashes since. A reliable Western source in Hanoi said recently in Bangkok that Vietnamese diplomats are reluctant to give details, but that the clashes are accepted as "almost a daily occurrence."

The sources say the clashes are probably over disputed borders. But the skirmishes may also be a Cambodian effort to drive back Vietnamese troops who went into Cambodia during the civil war and stayed there, or to prevent Cambodians from fleeing into Vietnam.

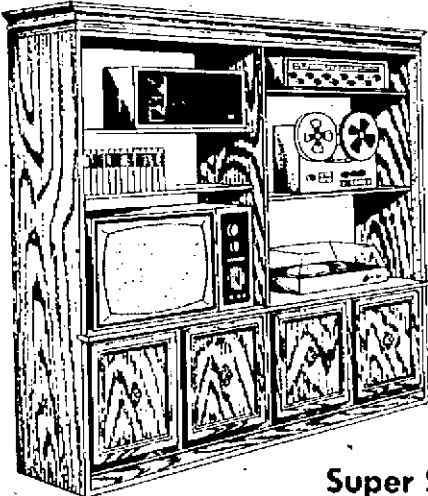

Historically, there has been frequent warfare and bitterness between the countries, with the Vietnamese nearly swallowing what was then Cambodian territory until the French intervention in Indochina in the latter half of the 19th Century.

World coffee output due to rise steeply

WASHINGTON (AP) — World coffee production still is expected to rise sharply from last year's crop despite a slight decline in prospects since last spring, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

The department's Foreign Agricultural Service estimated 1977-78 global output at 69.9 million bags, up 14 percent from 61.1 million bags produced last season. In its first estimate in June, the agency estimated the crop at 70.4 million bags. A bag of green coffee weighs about 132 pounds.

Daughter's killer hunted Loving mom discovers hate

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — "I miss her so terribly. There's such an ache, such a lonely feeling."

Pat Slusser, mother of a 12-year-old girl who was raped and killed, expresses frankly the agony of her loss, her hatred of the killer who is still at large and her hope that a lesson will be learned from her family's ordeal.

"I have never felt such hatred," she said in an open letter this week to the Waukegan News-Sun. "... I am, or was by nature, a very nonviolent person, but I want to see this creature suffer and I would watch him die in the electric chair without any remorse."

HER DAUGHTER, LISA, went to collect acorns for her pet rabbit last week, riding away in the early evening on her brother's bike up the shady road from the family home in an unincorporated area north of Waukegan. Her nude body was found three days later in weeds in a desolate area near the Des Plaines River.

Authorities said she had been stabbed 19 times, raped and struck on the head.

Burial was Tuesday, which would have been her 13th birthday.

Lisa thought she was tough enough to take care of herself, Mrs. Slusser wrote. "I told her, 'You never know what kind of kooks might be hanging around.' Her standard answer was one that I'm sure most kids give their parents — 'I'm strong, I can take care of myself.'"

If nothing else can be learned from Lisa's death," continued Mrs. Slusser, "I hope that these young girls seen hitchhiking, or kids playing alone in a field, park or school ground, will now realize that they aren't tough enough to take care of themselves. There will always be maniacs out looking for the opportunity so they can prove that point."

She told of her agonizing moments when her 7-year-old son returned home last week and said he had found his abandoned bike. "I just had the sick feeling — the instant knowing — that all mothers get when they instinctively know that their child is in danger."

THE HORROR — THE knot in your stomach, the unconscious wincing of hands, the thoughts that race through your mind — begin. "She'll be found, and she'll be all right" — then, "She'll be found, but probably be hurt," and finally, "When they find her, she'll be dead."

She told of how her hope ebbed, how the whole family stayed in the living room throughout the night "so we could see her running up the road."

At 2:30 a.m., she said, "the dogs barked... the dogs continued to bark. So we put on heavy coats and went outside. It was such a clear night, but so cold. I worried so much."

As for her daughter's killer, Mrs. Slusser wrote, "We know how many people are looking for him — his deed will not be forgotten. We are sure he will be found and I will confront him. I have to ask him, 'Why?' He must not ever hurt another innocent child."

Lonely boy finds friends in death

By George Esper

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — A little boy was buried Friday.

Life went on all around 11-year-old Frankie DeCorleto. Across the street from St. Augustine's Church, people went in and out of the post office and the Maple Bakery De-Scatessen and the Campfield Pharmacy, seemingly oblivious to the boy's violent death at the hand of his father.

Even at the cemetery, not more than 50 feet away, on the other side of a tall steel fence, a woman with curlers polished her red hair while the Catholic priest, the Rev. Harry McBrien, intoned prayers asking the Lord to comfort Frankie's mother and grandparents in their sorrow.

BUT FRANKIE, described as a lonely little boy, did not leave this world alone. About 50 people, most of whom never knew him in life, attended services here for him.

Frankie and his step-mother, Siobhan Marie Moran DeCorleto, 20, were fatally shot by his father.

Frank D. DeCorleto, a 34-year-old ex-convict, during a 15-hour siege that ended Tuesday morning, DeCorleto then took his own life.

Before he killed himself, he said in a telephone conversation to reporters from his barricaded second-floor apartment that he killed his son because "it's a rotten, stinking world."

Siobhan DeCorleto also was buried Friday in her native town of Danbury, 50 miles west of here. DeCorleto was buried Thursday in a cemetery five miles away from that of his son after private funeral services.

The mourners at the services for Frankie were mostly older people, shocked at the tragedy that ended his short life. But the four pallbearers were young men in shirt-sleeves who were friends of the boy's mother, Kathleen Clough DeCorleto, 24. She was divorced from DeCorleto in 1975.

Father McBrien said in his eulogy that the death of Frankie is linked to the death of Jesus. Both were innocent but died for our sins.

A trick in time outwits muggers

NEW YORK (AP) — When Tony Echevarria was mugged in Times Square, he couldn't outrun his attackers. But his hands were faster than their eyes.

Echevarria, a street magician, said he used a silk scarf, a cane and sleight of hand to mesmerize three youths who knocked him to the ground and stole his bag of tricks while he was giving a sidewalk performance Thursday evening.

Wearing a button that said "I believe in magic," Echevarria, 22, related his story Friday in the Manhattan Criminal Court building, as he awaited the arraignment of the three suspects.

Echevarria said he got up and gave chase, but when he caught up with his attackers in a parking lot two blocks away, they had turned and were ready to beat him with planks.

Left to his own resources, he flourished a scarlet silk handkerchief and warned the assailants, "This thing will hurt you bad. Leave me alone."

Then he turned it into a cane, he said, and on Friday he was happy to re-enact that part.

They thought it was a sword cane," Echevarria said. "They were stunned" — so stunned that by the time they recovered, the police had arrived. Two officers who had seen the youths menacing the magician approached with guns drawn.

Robert Stephens, Jeanty Barreau and David Wilson, all 17, were charged with attempted robbery.

CAN IT?

Everybody says, "Hey, pick that up, hey," but where you going to put it unless you got a good trash can, with a snug lid. You see all the dawgs tearing bags up and scattering stuff all over the street. Got to have a good trash can, or two, or go get the broom out.

'Elk' ready to stalk America

By Ed Blanche

LONDON (AP) — Elkie Brooks shook her long black hair and leaned forward in the armchair: "America's the place. That's where I've got to make the breakthrough, and this time I think I can make it."

"The Elk," as she calls herself, is one of the best female singers in Britain, a gutsy lady with a dynamite voice and a reputation for tempestuous change.

She's been on the road since she quit school at 15, won a talent contest in her native Manchester and was groomed as Britain's answer to Brenda Lee by a cigar-smoking agent. Remember Brenda Lee?

"The Elk's" bounced in and out of the charts every once in a while but never really got the break that would mean the big time.

But now she believes she's set. She's had a "top 10" hit in Britain with "Pearl's a Singer" — a song about a nightclub singer who never made it to stardom. Her second album's selling well, and she hopes to launch a U.S. tour this year.

"I was pushed into a lot of things in the past," she said. "I've been manipulated. But now I'm a lot more confident about what I want instead of relying on other people. I know I'm good. It's what's kept me going all this time."

SHE REPEATEDLY WON critical acclaim and became a minor cult figure in the early 1970s when she fronted the now-disbanded Vinegar Joe.

She went through all the changes — pretty girl singing mindless bubble-gum songs, the cabaret bit, resident singer with a big dance band, gigging with jazz outfits and getting it on with Vinegar Joe.

She wound up a hardened, all-round pro, able to handle anything from funky rock to jazz standards. A stint at Ronnie Scott's, mecca of jazz and progressive music in London, established her as a quality singer. But stardom eluded her.

The downers, the clashes with managers and agents, the wrong directions, the years in bandwagons cruising up and down the freeway linking London and the north, have left their scars.

"I enjoy singing," she said. "It's all there is. But I can't stand all the crap that goes with it. I hate this business really."

"I hope it gets easier as I get more successful. It'll mean I'll get richer, but it'll also let me do the things I want to do."

ELKIE'S GOT HER OWN band now. It includes her husband and mentor, Pete Gage, on guitar. But she stresses she's the star out front now.

When she sang with Vinegar Joe she was wild and erotic, a cross between Janis Joplin and Tina Turner. She screamed and prowled the stage, battering her thighs black and blue with a tambourine.

"I've learned to control my wild stuff," she said.

This self-control is part of Elkie's carefully studied formula for becoming a star. The image of "a good-time shambles" is gone, and now she's posing for glossy publicity shots in white tuxedo and slit black skirt and everything else it takes to sell a lot of records in the suburbs.

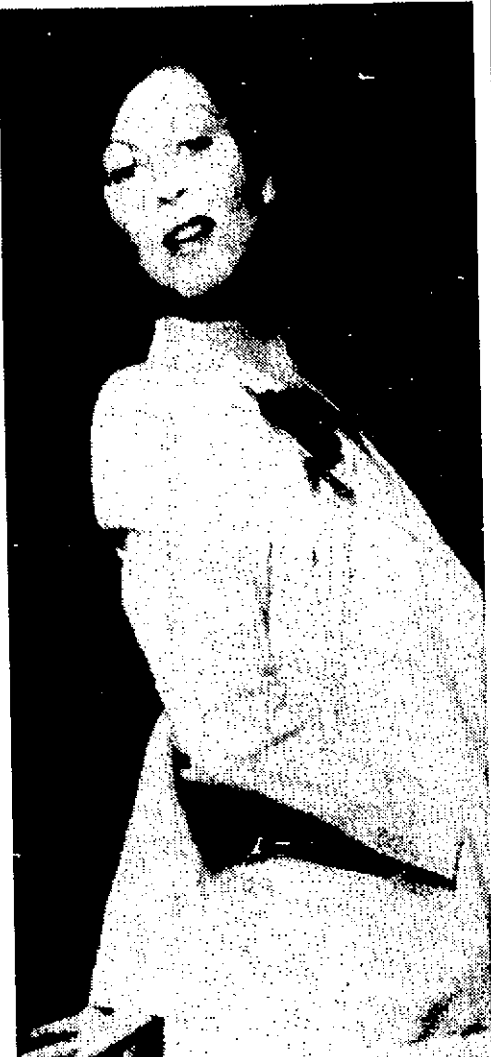

"They expect a woman singer to be very sweet and polite and really underplay it," she sniffed. "Well, I've overplayed to a ridiculous extent until now."

'Jaws 2' gets revised script

"Jaws 2," which recently got a new director, is undergoing script revisions after resuming production at Navarre Beach, Fla.

Carl Gottlieb, co-screenwriter of the original hit, has been signed by producers Richard D. Zanuck and David Brown to work with newly named director Jeannot Szwarc in making the revisions.

The film, again set in the fictional resort town of Amity, stars Roy Scheider and Lorraine Gary.

Instant Theater: instant boredom

By Dorothy Korber
Staff Writer

When improvisational theater works, the result is excitement beyond the structured confines of traditional drama.

When improvisation doesn't work, the result is boredom.

It didn't work at a recent performance of the Instant Theater, a Hollywood improvisational troupe that is enthusiastic but unimaginative. An actor cannot improvise an interesting character if the actor is dull.

Watching the evening of long and short improvisations was like watching a modern dance class in group therapy. The actors moved well, but their ideas were vague and shallow. They were fond of symbols, but the symbols were meaningless. They wore masks and weird costumes, but these additions were mostly irrelevant and distracting.

Why wear a bear suit if it serves no purpose?

The result was boring. Perhaps boredom is an existential experience in itself, but it is hardly a basis for an evening at the theater.

The problem may be insoluble, for the troupe is composed of young people who seemingly have devoted years to singing, dancing and acting lessons. While useful for a television variety performer, such intensive training must limit the nontheatrical experiences of the actor. And the basis for valid improvisation is experience.

The Instant Theater performers may tap dance like pros, but their responses to commonplace experiences are more closely related to television situations than to real life.

REVIEW

They set out to prove that the evening was truly improvised and unrehearsed by allowing the audience to suggest a theme for an impromptu sketch. "High school graduation" was the suggestion.

The troupe's response was to devise two characters: a cheerleader and an intellectual. Pretty obvious. These characters made some predictable, wistful comments. Next, an actor dressed as a convict walked on. He lamented that he had been a top student but dropped out of school to rob a drug-store.

This tedious monologue on the nature of crime proved that the evening truly was improvised and unrehearsed. There never was much doubt of that, however.

In fairness, I must point out that the two guiding lights of Instant Theater did not perform the night I saw the show. Rachel Rosenthal (who first organized a prototype troupe 20 years ago) and her husband, King Moody, joined the audience that night to observe their young proteges.

Miss Rosenthal says the production is never the same twice. "It is a fragile, evanescent and delicate creation," she states, "to be enjoyed much as one enjoys a sunset, a fight in the street, rain...

I honestly enjoyed the evening as much as I enjoy a fight in the street or even a visit to the dentist. I did not enjoy it as much as I enjoy a well-written, well-directed and well-rehearsed play.

The Instant Theater group performs on Fridays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m. in the Hollywood Center Theater, 1451 N. Las Palmas Ave. They also perform "Instant Fairy Tales" for children on Sundays at 1 and 3 p.m.

MURIEL HUMPHREY welcomes home her husband, Sen. Hubert Humphrey, from his 18-day hospital stay for cancer.

—AP Wirephoto

Humphrey home from hospital

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Sen. Hubert Humphrey ended an 18-day hospital stay Friday, thinner and paler than before, and went home to continue a battle against inoperable cancer.

But he smiled, shook hands and refused the conventional wheelchair ride to the hospital door along a hallway gauntlet of well-wishers and reporters.

Humphrey's surgeon, Dr. John S. Najarian, said it will be "another week or two" before Humphrey can return to Washington.

HUMPHREY, 68, underwent surgery Aug. 18 to relieve an intestinal blockage. Surgeons found a widespread tumor of the pelvis, a growth which cannot be removed by surgery, but will be treated with drugs and possibly X-rays.

Najarian has repeatedly refused to speculate on Humphrey's life expectancy.

"The future will depend on how well he responds to his treatment, which I hope will be excellent," he said.

On the day of Humphrey's surgery, Najarian had said: "It could be months, it could be years; predictions are impossible."

Although earlier forecasts had suggested that Humphrey might return to the Senate when Congress reconvenes next week, he declined to speculate when he might be back.

"I guarantee you I'll be back in time to do the work that needs to be done," Humphrey said.

He said he wants to attend some baseball games and get some rest at the family home on the shores of Lake Waverly, about 40 miles west of Minneapolis.

Humphrey and his wife, Muriel, celebrate their 41st wedding anniversary today.

"When I go back I want to come back in fighting trim," the former vice president said.

Humphrey's cancer was a recurrence of bladder cancer discovered last October. Doctors had removed his bladder in the earlier surgery and on Aug. 18 performed a colostomy, an artificial opening for the large intestine through the abdomen.

NAJARIAN said Humphrey's program of treatment is "not completely clear" at this point but is being planned with the National Cancer Institute and Sloan-Kettering Institute in New York.

He said he would like to start treatments within a week if Humphrey feels well enough. Cancer treatments sometimes cause nausea and other side effects, Najarian said.

"This man's a workaholic," he said. "He wants to get back to Washington and get back to work. The sooner the better as far as he's concerned."

Latin heads flocking to treaty fete

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter announced Friday that heads of state or their representatives from 23 Western Hemisphere nations have accepted his invitation to attend signing ceremonies for the new Panama Canal treaty.

In addition, Carter said tentative acceptances have been received by representatives of Barbados, Surinam, Trinidad and Tobago.

Carter will spend much of three days next week meeting with the foreign leaders to discuss issues between their respective nations and the United States, said White House press secretary Jody Powell. He said the meetings will begin late Tuesday and continue into Friday.

The treaty will be signed at the Pan American Union at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Powell said the ceremony would be available for live television-radio broadcast. A state dinner for the visiting leaders is scheduled an hour later.

FORMER President Ford will attend the ceremony and the state dinner and will spend Wednesday night at the White House as Carter's guest. White House spokeswoman Mary Hoyt said he probably will sleep in the Lincoln bed.

Although Ford has been to the White House to confer with Carter twice since Carter replaced him as president, this marks Ford's first overnight stay at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. since he left.

Mrs. Ford, vacationing in Vail, Colo., will not accompany her husband because of the "somewhat unexpected request," a spokesman for Ford said.

Mrs. Lyndon Johnson, wife of the former president, also will attend the signing ceremony and will be a guest of the Carters at the White House. Mrs. Hoyt said Friday that Mrs. Johnson will attend the state dinner and stay in the Queen's Bedroom.

This will be Mrs. Johnson's first state dinner and overnight visit since the Carters moved into the White House. Mrs. Johnson did attend a White House luncheon for Senate wives last spring.

At his regular news briefing, Powell said President Jose Lopez-Portillo of Mexico telephoned Carter on Wednesday to "express his extreme regret that he won't be able to attend."

Powell said Lopez-Portillo told Carter that he is unable to leave his country at the time of the signing, but was "strongly supportive" of the treaty.

He said Lopez-Portillo said nothing in the conversation to confirm published reports that he didn't want to be a party to Carter's difficulties in winning domestic support for the treaty, and that he doesn't want to be associated with President Augusto Pinochet Ugarte of Chile and others who he considers repressive military leaders.

Congressional showdown due for Lance next week

Combined New Services

WASHINGTON — Budget Director Bert Lance faces a new ordeal by congressional investigation next week that may tell if he can survive the furor over his past banking practices.

Lance is hanging tough with President Carter's backing. But for Carter, the political price for keeping his old friend appears to be rising as rapidly as Lance's debt once did.

An unusual combination of conservative Republicans and liberal Democrats already has demanded Lance's removal. He also has become the constant target of newspaper and magazine investigative articles and editorials.

Lance, who insists that he has done nothing wrong or improper, is scheduled to testify in person Thursday before a committee of increasingly skeptical senators.

The public exploration of his financial operations will begin before that, however.

L.A., 9 other cities may get the Concorde

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The administration is secretly weighing the possibility of allowing the Concorde supersonic airliner to land at 10 additional cities, including Los Angeles, despite controversy surrounding its noise, government sources said Friday.

Under the Concorde test agreement formulated by former President Ford's administration, the government may issue a ruling on permanent landing rights for the plane Sept. 24, the date that marks the end of a 16-month test at Dulles International Airport here.

The British-French plane had been scheduled to fly to New York, too, but local regulations have banned it there so far.

A PROPOSAL on Concorde, which is likely to come from recommendations being considered by the State and Commerce departments, the Environmental Protection Agency and trade negotiators, is expected to be announced Sept. 24, according to a White House source, who added that a final ruling would be made by next March if the present timetable holds.

When asked to specify the proposals on Concorde, David Jewell, public affairs director for the Department of Transportation, said "the set of options have a 'secret' classification for reasons of national security." He would not elaborate.

Tuesday, a House subcommittee will quiz Lance's former banking colleagues and federal bank regulators about his conduct as the head of two Georgia banks before he joined the government.

Fresh disclosures also are expected from Senate hearings starting Wednesday. Comptroller of the Currency John Heimann will report on Lance's use of a bank-owned airplane and some Lance banking practices before 1975.

THE RETURN of Congress after Labor Day is certain to generate additional discussion of Lance's month-old troubles concerning overdrafts, his failure to report loans and double-pledging the same collateral on two loans.

Meanwhile, federal bank examiners are questioning Lance's acknowledged current practice of overdrawing his checking account at one Georgia bank and covering checks with money from another Georgia bank.

The examiners' concern was reported Friday by Lance's spokesman, Robert Dietsch, who said the National Bank of Georgia transfers money automatically to the First National Bank of Calhoun whenever Lance overdraws the Calhoun account.

Lance headed both banks at different times before Carter appointed him to head the Office of Management and Budget.

Dietsch said Lance and the banks acknowledge that Lance sometimes writes checks on the Calhoun bank for more money than he has on deposit there. But he said transferring funds from NBG to cover the checks takes a day or less.

Dietsch said William E. Green, executive vice president of the National Bank of Georgia, assured him that there always has been plenty of money in the NBG accounts to cover the overdrafts.

Dietsch denied any impropriety in the practice.

AT THE White House, Press Secretary Jody Powell agreed with Dietsch's account. Powell said the Calhoun bank handles overdrafts by other customers in the same way and said he has not discussed the matter with the bank examiners to avoid any appearance of trying to influence their findings.

Asked whether the president thought there was any reason to replace Lance, Powell replied as he has in the past: "Mr. Lance has done nothing that would warrant him being removed from government."

Later, Carter ignored a reporter's question about Lance's future in the administration, as the president and his wife boarded a helicopter that took them to Camp David, Md., for the Labor Day weekend.

Meanwhile, federal investigators have decided that the comptroller of the currency may have been politically motivated in lifting restrictions on Lance's Calhoun bank, the Los Angeles Times reports.

Existence of the report, compiled by the Internal Revenue Service, was made public by the Times in its Saturday edition.

The report is not due to be released for another week, the newspaper said.

The comptroller had imposed the sanctions on the Calhoun bank in an effort to curb overdrafts by Lance, his wife and relatives. At the time, Lance was chairman of the board of the Calhoun bank and president of the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta. The overdrafts at one time amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars.

However, the restrictions were lifted by the comptroller's office last Nov. 22, and the IRS report suggested that the reason was to avoid embarrassment for Lance at his Senate confirmation hearings.

Black jobless rate up pointed. Just how long they are going to retain their present friendly relationship with him I just don't know."

Noting that some economists have predicted another recession, Meany said he saw no indications that the economy was "going to get any better."

Julius Shiskin, chief of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, told the congressional Joint Economic Committee Friday that "the situation for blacks is grim (and) the situation in the central cities is grim."

But Shiskin said he did not feel the new report forecast another recession.

The August job report showed that total employment had continued to rise during the month, increasing by 210,000. But only white workers benefited from the increase.

Jobless rates were up from 10.1 to 11.7 percent for black men and from 10.9 percent to 12.2 percent for black women. The rate for black teenagers edged downward from 40.7 to 40.4 percent. But the government reported earlier this week that joblessness among teenage blacks was at an all-time summer high of 34.8 percent.

Senate kills Brown's tax-relief bill of "social engineering" provisions.

"Why, with a multimillion-dollar state surplus, can't the residential homeowners simply get tax relief without new taxes?" he asked, citing the capital gains and bank and corporation tax rate increases and several new taxing authorizations given to local government.

He said enactment of the bill, together with the school finance bill approved Friday, would result in exhausting the present state surplus in three years.

"How then will it be possible to avoid a tax increase?" he asked. Sen. William Campbell, R-Danbury, said enactment of the measure would continue to drive businesses from California.

"The major beneficiaries of this bill will be the states of Oregon and Nevada," Campbell said, "because they will be the ones who profit from this economic insanity."

Petris, Brown, and every other legislator who spoke on behalf of the bill in the two houses agreed with critics that the bill had many drawbacks.

But they said the compromise was a "politically sound" measure which, on balance, should be supported.

Even Brown said "there are parts of the bill I don't like."

He agreed with Deukmejian that "the key to tax reform is to limit local government's ability to collect tax revenues."

He said other principles he believed essential to reform were "the immediate rebate, by check, of a portion of the property taxes paid by homeowners" and the adoption of the "split roll" concept which would allow commercial property to be taxed at a different rate from residential property.

More CIA files bared

"What with suspicious banks, landlord, utility companies, etc., you will understand that creating the Jenkyll (sic) Hyde personality in the form of (deleted) is taking a little doing," he wrote on May 26, 1953. By June 10 of that year, an apartment was rented, carpeted, furnished and supplied with liquor at a cost of $3,515.

This project, CIA documents show, was later transferred to San Francisco, where the same pseudonym, Morgan Hall, was used to rent an apartment in which prostitutes gave LSD to unwitting subjects, whose behavior was secretly observed and recorded for the CIA.

A memorandum about the use of LSD, dated Dec. 1, 1953, and given to two Senate committees in joint hearings in 1975, notes that White was "chief of New York District, Narcotics Division, Treasury Department" and that the CIA had furnished him "a limited quantity of LSD" by that time.

In Friday's statement, Kennedy said his subcommittee, a unit of the Senate Human Resources Committee, wanted to study other documents recently released by the CIA, as well as documents requested from the Department of Defense, which was unable to furnish them all in time for the Sept. 9 hearing date.

Subpoenas for that hearing went to Gottlieb, who was reported to have destroyed most of the mind-control records before leaving the agency in 1973, and to three others.

These were Dr. Robert Lashbrook, a chemist who worked for Gottlieb and now teaches science at a high school and junior college in California; Dr. Charles F. Geschickter, a former professor at Georgetown University whose Geschickter Fund for Medical Research Inc. was one of the principal CIA conduits for financing research at hospitals and universities; and Walter P. Pasternak, a former CIA employee who was an official of the Society for the Investigation of Human Ecology, also a CIA conduit.

Pasternak, who has been linked in agency documents to a series of drug tests on unsuspecting people in New York and San Francisco, agreed to appear at an Aug. 3 Senate hearing on the project, but did not.

At that hearing, Turner said the CIA had secretly supported human behavior control research at 80 institutions, including 44 colleges or universities, as well as hospitals.

The research was organized under the code name Bluebird, later changed to Artichoke, and eventually became Mk-Ultra-Mk-Delta. With each code name change, the interest in mind control broadened until there remained virtually no avenue of human behavior control they were not exploring, from interrogation techniques to knock-out drugs, from LSD to germ warfare, from the use of polygraphs to handwriting analysis.

The program, CIA records available so far indicate, was wound down in 1964, further curtailed in 1967 and finally halted in 1973. Its last phase, code-named Often-Chickwit, were conducted in coordination with the Office of Research and Development at Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland.

Calkins vows more public contact

By Robert Gore
Staff Writer

When Carl Calkins joined the Long Beach Police Department as assistant chief in July 1976, he stepped into the middle of a vicious personal feud between two deputy chiefs trading charges of lying.

Large-scale switches of commanders, wholesale transfers of officers back to patrol, a couple of scandals and a pending realignment of the entire patrol force kept Calkins in the middle of controversy.

Skeptical patrol officers greeted him as "the carpetbag chief." Many of his changes were met with reluctance. Calkins' response was to put on a uniform and ride with patrol officers — something they hadn't seen before.

The pressure never showed until the past few weeks when the strain of not knowing who would be chief began to surface. One captain said Calkins had started acting "like a bumblebee on a string. He'd flit from one place to another."

However, Calkins was sworn in Friday as permanent chief after his appointment by City Manager John Dever. It was a signal that changes will continue. These changes, according to Calkins, will affect the future of the entire city.

"We are going to have a greater emphasis on being open to the demands of the people we serve," he said. "We have to serve. We cannot be an authoritarian source simply telling people what to do."

"WE'RE A RESOURCE for which they've paid a great amount of tax money," Calkins continued. The 622-member force is the largest department in the city budget at nearly $30 million.

Two bar incidents, one involving a group of off-duty patrolmen and the other involving two on-duty vice detectives, have smudged the department's reputation in the past 18 months.

"These are problems every police chief and his organization must face periodically," Calkins said. He noted that a two-year limit of service for vice detectives has been established and that more sergeants have been added to the detail for closer supervision.

Calkins felt that a civilian police review board would not be effective. "It would create a communications gap between the department and the City Council," he said.

Several changes should reduce crime locally, he explained.

Sector policing is a plan that has divided the city into three parts, each with its own police force. The theory is that police officers, permanently assigned to an area, will feel more responsible to citizens of the area.

Citizen meetings and neighborhood watch groups are being set up in conjunction with the sector policing to involve the citizens. Increased use of foot patrols will aid the new downtown mall and other developments.

"We have a total master plan for crime prevention," Calkins said. "We want prospective businessmen and residents to say, 'Hey, there's a city I want to go to.' Doing something about crime brings things to a city."

The police department is "one of the key organizations in improving the quality of life" in Long Beach, he said.

Protecting the city from organized crime is another of the new chief's top priorities. He said he is expanding the administrative security detail, which includes investigation of applications for city business permits and intelligence-gathering operations.

HIS RIDE-ALONGS in squad cars will continue and so will his periodic coffee sessions with groups of men ranging from officer to captain, Calkins said.

His order for a certain number of patrol officers to attend a coffee has occasionally led to last-minute comic scrambles as sergeants try to corral reluctant officers.

Although he faced four months of hush-hush competition fostered by the city manager, Calkins expressed confidence in his appointment to friends.

"The fact that a year ago I was selected as an outside applicant from a screening board with very high requirements" was one reason for his confidence, he said.

Another reason was "just knowing generally where I stand with my peers in terms of experience and education," Calkins added. He is a retired captain with 20 years service at Los Angeles police, was safety director for Carson and has two master's degrees.

Search for new chief still veiled

Mystery still surrounds the process by which City Manager John Dever selected Acting Chief Carl Calkins as permanent Long Beach police chief.

The appointment was announced Aug. 26 and approved by the City Council Tuesday. Calkins was formally installed at a ceremony Friday.

Most sources set the number of finalists for the job at seven, who were interviewed Aug. 25 on the Queen Mary by a panel of citizens and a group of law enforcement professionals.

Dever has consistently refused to disclose the number of applicants or the finalists' names. He has remained silent about who were investigating the candidates, who were on the interview panels, how many people were on the panels and how they were selected.

Dever explained that disclosure of the finalists might hurt their current jobs.

As for the panelists, he told the press: "I asked for their advice. I didn't get their permission (to release their names). I don't think they'll talk to you."

From several sources, all of whom requested anonymity, the following information was pieced together:

Dever and Personnel Director Barney Walczak received nearly 50 applications after the city placed an ad in national law enforcement journals.

The city manager alone spent the next four months doing intermittent background reviews to eliminate all but the finalists. These included personal interviews, telephone calls and letters.

He then asked four citizens to interview the candidates. The panel was led by Dr. Mel Powell, head of the Center for Public Policy at Long Beach State University.

The three "law enforcement professionals" who participated in the selection were one active chief, one retired chief and a city manager.

Dever did not question any of the finalists after their interviews by the panels.

Deputy Chief William Stovall and Capt. Douglas Drummond were selected by Dever to join Calkins in the final round, along with candidates from New York City, Alabama, Chicago and another agency in this state. One of the outside men did not show up for the interviews.

"Carl seemed to be particularly concerned with talking to the community, but the other candidates were good," Powell said. He termed Calkins "a standout. We were able to convey our impressions to the city manager almost immediately."

Shaff to manage Convention Center

Richard H. Shaff, assistant manager of the Long Beach Arena and Auditorium, will be the manager of the city's $51.5-million Convention Center now under construction.

Randall J. Verru, general manager of the city's Tidelands Activities, made the announcement of Shaff's appointment.

Shaff, 38, has been instrumental in the development of the new convention complex since its inception.

An October opening is slated for the 100,000-square-foot Exhibition Hall. The entire complex, including a 3,141-seat theater, an 862-seat theater, and 14 meeting rooms, will open next January.

Shaff, a graduate of Long Beach State University, has a degree in Public Administration.

IT'S ROOF STILL DOWN BEHIND FACADE, THEATER WAITS FOR BUYER

Theater where the roof caved in now empty, for sale at $500,000

By Brad Altman
Staff Writer

The Towne Theater is for sale — only $500,000 cash. It has been empty since Jan. 25, the night the roof fell in.

One man was hurt in the cave-in — Ojeda Barraza, a 39-year-old construction worker, who was badly bruised. Paramedics worked two hours to free him from a roof beam.

Today, seven months later, a "For Sale" sign is posted in a window and the marquee is bare. Dust turned to dirt covers the open-air auditorium.

"It was a beautiful theater in its day, but that day has come and gone," said Robert W. Selig, director of Pacific Theaters. The chain owns the 32-year-old theater at 4425 Atlantic Ave.

"We're hoping to sell it," Selig continued. "We've gotten some pretty good bites but no actual terms."

Charles Robinson is manager of the Crest Theater, a few blocks south on Atlantic. "A number of customers have asked me what they're going to do with it," he paused. "It was a damn good thing people listened to that projectionist."

The projectionist was Chuck Evans, a part-time worker. He heard a creaking sound two nights before the roof cave-in. He reported it to the manager, Peggy Mayne.

Then a boy walked up to her with a piece of plaster in his hand. It fell from the ceiling. Peggy Mayne called her bosses. Frank Diaz, Pacific Theater's as-

There was a break in a wood ceiling truss. Fifteen men from Better-Bilt Scaffolds Inc. of Los Angeles were hired to repair it.

"We knew the roof was in bad shape," Better-Bilt President Cleo Russell said this week. "What we didn't know was that it was raining outside."

Lack of funds, but teachers protected

By Dorothy Korber

Despite a shortage of money, Paramount school district trustees have decided to pay a 21 percent increase in employees' insurance premiums.

"Unless the checks are dated Oct. 1, no one in the district will have insurance coverage," School Supt. Palmer Campen told the board Thursday. "I recommend that an additional $120,000 for insurance coverage be placed in the budget."

Board president Benjamin Dominguez said, "We don't have the money in our hot little hands, but we don't have any choice."

Trustee Gene French asked where the money would come from. Administrators suggested transferring the funds from the transportation budget or from other budget classifications.

Anne McCustion, president of the Teachers Association of Paramount, commended the board for the "excellent" insurance coverage the district provides.

Paramount pays 90 percent of insurance costs for single workers and 80 percent for employees with dependents.

In another action, the board approved hiring consultant Gene Bedley to present a half-day program on "Discipline in Schools." The program costs $100.

The board also praised its staff and community volunteers for their work on a series of immunization clinics.

"Other districts sit back and listen to statistics," said board member N.D. Van Sickle. "Paramount has done the job."

Consolidation of L.B. oil terminals gets smog unit OK

By Jack O. Baldwin
Maritime Editor

At the urging of Long Beach port officials, the South Coast Air Quality Management District Friday voted to consider consolidating the proposed Macmillan Ring-Free Oil Co. tanker terminal with the three-tanker terminal proposed by Standard Oil of Ohio.

After hearing testimony from Dr. Donald B. Bright, director of commerce for the harbor department, the board decided at its meeting in Riverside that the concept of relocating Macmillan's proposed terminal be considered along with Sohio's proposed project.

Dr. Bright said the revised plan would allow the project to proceed with a minimum of dredging and would maximize the use of scarce deepwater areas.

He said that when the board meets Sept. 14 it is hoped that a definitive proposal can be presented. It would include:

—An agreement by all parties on their willingness to participate in the project.

—A detailed description of the combined projects.

—A preliminary outline of the supplement of an Environmental Impact Report.

—A suggested time schedule.

Dr. Bright said the concept of moving the proposed Macmillan terminal from Pier A, site of the former Pierpoint Landing recreational area, to the proposed Sohio site on the south side of Pier J was in keeping with a state mandate that tanker terminals be located as far seaward as possible. This is to remove them from populated areas and to minimize the need for dredging to handle deep-draft oil carriers.

Harwood said the Coast Guard has opposed the Pier A terminal site. He noted that in March Coast Guard Capt. H. W. Parker said an alternate site or arrangement would be preferred.

The AQMD voted to hear final testimony Sept. 14 from Sohio and the harbor department which recently joined Sohio as a co-applicant in the permit process.

The board then will recess the hearings indefinitely until a supplement to an EIR covering the project is ready for presentation. The hearings then would be resumed but only after 30 days public notice was given. The supplement to the EIR covering the Sohio project was requested by a group of petitioners including the League of Women Voters, several lung associations, the Sierra Club and a small group of private citizens.

Harwood indicated that at least 30 days would be required to prepare the Sohio EIR supplement and even longer to complete the EIR covering the proposed relocation of the Macmillan terminal. He said he favored the Macmillan facility relocation because it would require no more dredging for the berthing of one super tanker or four tankers.

Robert S. Wilson, an executive with Macmillan, said his company was eager to do everything possible to protect the Southland environment and still meet the energy needs of the nation.

Dr. Bright told the board that it is Sohio's intention to build a three-berth terminal in Long Beach to receive about 700,000 barrels per day of crude oil from the North Slope of Alaska. The Macmillan project has been proposed to handle about 150,000 barrels per day.

About 200,000 barrels from the Sohio project would be processed by Southland refineries. The excess oil would be shipped via pipeline to Midland, Texas for ultimate distribution throughout the mid west.

Restoration of RTD service urged by Hayes

From Our L.A. Bureau

Los Angeles County Supervisor James Hayes said Friday he has urged the Southern California Rapid Transit District to restore partial service on two San Pedro bus lines because passengers have protested and merchants have lost weekend customers.

Hayes said he received petitions with almost 1,000 signatures complaining about the service cuts, adding that the San Pedro Downtown Merchants Association has suffered a "severe drop" in Saturday business because of the cutbacks.

He said the RTD cut weekend service on line 872 running on Summerland Avenue and 13th Street and on as line 874 running on Western Avenue, 25th and Center streets.

Positive Thinking

HOW TO ENJOY WORK

By Norman Vincent Peale

There is a way of working on a job that is unique, successful and power-filled. So many people tug and pull and strain at their job, always making hard work of it. And so they find no pleasure in it.

I'm not saying that hard work isn't important. I believe in hard work. I've never known anyone who amounted to anything who didn't work hard. Our country was built by hard work. Even genius, as Edison pointed out, is only one per cent inspiration and ninety-nine percent perspiration.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, the famous World War I flying ace, once told me how poor he and his family were when he was young. All members of the Rickenbacker family had to work, and his hard work gave him a lifelong pride in the fact that by effort he had been able to make something of himself.

Of course, in addition to a willingness to work, Eddie Rickenbacker had superlative ability and great courage. But most important of all, he learned how to make his job easier so that he could enjoy it and do it better.

When I left him after a visit I said, as we all do, "Don't work too hard, now."

His answer was immediate: "I wouldn't enjoy living if I couldn't enjoy work and neither would you."

But some people are workaholics so much they make their labors unnecessarily hard — a habit both wasteful and discouraging. Well, we have worked out a technique for making hard work easy. Here is a set of rules for taking the hard work out of any job.

• DON'T GET the idea that you are Atlas carrying the world on your shoulders. The world would go on even without you. So don't take yourself all that seriously.

• TELL YOURSELF that you like your job, and mean it. Then it will become a pleasure without drudgery. Perhaps you do not need to change your job to get an easier one. Change yourself and your job will seem different.

• PLAN YOUR work — work your plan. Lack of system produces that "I'm swamped" feeling.

• DON'T TRY to do everything at once. That is why time is spread out.

• GET A HEALTHY mental attitude, remembering that ease or difficulty in your job depends on how you think about it. Think it's hard, and you will make it hard. Think it's easy, and it will tend to become so.

• BECOME ALWAYS more proficient. "Knowledge is power" over your job. It is always easier to do a thing right.

• PRACTICE BEING relaxed. Easy always does it. Don't press or strain.

• DISCIPLINE YOURSELF not to put off until tomorrow what you can do today. Accumulations make the job harder than it should be. Don't drag yesterday's burdens along with you. Keep your work plan up to schedule.

• AT THE START of every day thank God you have a job. Then give that job all you've got and then some.

• THINK AND BECOME practiced in thinking. There is always a better way to do a job. And that better way is an easier way.

Clip these rules and put them in your purse or wallet. Carry them around with you and refer to them when things begin to pile up. You'll find it helpful.

Bethany Baptist greets new pastor

By Ralph Hinman Jr.

A strong, young voice will resound from the pulpit this Sunday when 1,500-member Bethany Baptist Church welcomes a new minister to 2250 Clark Ave.

The central message clearly remains unchanged, however.

"My goal here," declared dynamic, 30-year-old Rev. Tom Givens during an interview this week, "is to present Christ to our people and to the people of Long Beach.

"I'm conservative in theological terms," continued this Santa Ana-born native son, "and I believe the Bible is the literal Word of God, without mistake.

"I believe that Jesus is the only way of salvation for mankind. And I believe that, quite literally, He is coming back in the flesh to judge the world."

His predecessor, the Rev. William J. McIlhenny, who resigned his 14-year pastorate earlier this year to accept a post at Canoga Park First Baptist, used on other occasions all but identical words to describe on these religion pages his ministry here.

As did his predecessor, the Rev. Robert L. Hubbard, and all the others dating back through the years to Bethany's founding in 1903 at Hill and Olive Streets.

Givens is the 15th regularly constituted minister to serve Bethany.

So far as church programs go, noted the former associate minister in Anaheim's Magnolia Baptist, "it will take a while to determine the needs of our people — and to determine God's will."

He assumes the leadership mantle in a church clearly placing strong emphasis on youth work and education. Music also seems to share this a general dedication to religious excellence.

BETHANY BAPTIST CHURCH's 15th — and newest — pastor, the Rev. Tom Givens, stands before stately, modified Colonial church home at 2250 Clark Ave. He assumed the reins this week, preaches his first "regular" sermon there on Sunday.

Graham replies to charge; two more pop up

Preacher tells of record, claims high ethics; but new book alleges Mob tie

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — Get something on a famed "good guy" and it sizzles. Even if it only raises a question mark. That is sort of what has happened to evangelist Billy Graham. But he has laid out his detailed answer.

Also, an old tape recording has turned up which seems to undercut the original implication that he had set up a "secret fund" alongside his evangelistic operations.

"It put a question in people's mind concerning my integrity and responsibility," Graham said in a telephone interview before he left on his first preaching mission in Hungary. "The basic impression it leaves is groundless."

That appears confirmed by the tape recording, made by an Akron Beacon Journal reporter, Peter Geiger, five years ago and used in a series on Graham in which the minister talks about the fund to aid other evangelical work.

"It vindicates Graham," Geiger said. "It doesn't speak to whether the fund ought to exist, but the tape certainly speaks to the fact that it wasn't any secret."

Recent reports about the fund were carried by the Charlotte, N.C., Observer in a series on Graham. The series is being distributed in augmented form by Universal Syndicate of Mission City, Kan.

David Lawrence, the Observer's executive editor, said that prior to its series, at a lunch with Graham, he "assured us he has told us everything about his finances, and at that point, he had told us nothing about the special fund."

Its existence was ascertained later by Observer reporters, Lawrence said, and a story done about it.

In Akron, Geiger noted that he was speaking only for himself in saying the old tape "vindicated Graham." The Beacon Journal's managing editor, Albert Fitzpatrick, emphasized that Geiger was not speaking for the paper.

"We don't think it's clear in the old tape that Graham was speaking of the same fund," Fitzpatrick said.

In the 1972 tape recording, Graham says the fund had been set up some 18 months earlier, with headquarters in Dallas and was "raising money to be used for evangelical work throughout the world."

That also is the gist of his newly issued, extensive statement about the $22 million fund, called the World Evangelism and Christian Education Fund. It was established in 1970 to aid seminaries, evangelical training and periodicals, missions, relief work, hospitals and scholarships throughout the world.

"In its early years, we talked about it freely to various reporters and at press conferences, to anybody who would listen, but it generally was ignored as too dull," Graham said.

LATER, HOWEVER, he said he "quit talking about it" partly because heavy demands on it were more than could be met, and because it now is concentrating on financing a major Christian education center at Wheaton College in Illinois for missions and evangelism training.

"It's not really untruthful for stories to say we'd quit publicizing it, but to go on to imply that it was hidden or secret is just not true," Graham said.

He noted that the fund is independently audited annually and regular reports are filed on it with the Internal Revenue Service of a type open to public inspection at all times.

Members of the executive committee who oversee the fund without pay are Dewey Presley, president of Dallas' First National Bank and board chairman of Baylor University; William Mead, head of Campbell-Taggart, a large Dallas banking firm, and George F. Bennett of Boston, for 10 years treasurer of Harvard University.

"Not one penny from the fund goes to any board member or staff," Graham said.

Graham, now 58 and the world's leading evangelist for a quarter century, has always emphasized openness about his finances and early in his career spurned the system of unrecorded "love offerings" which sometimes have brought abuses in evangelism. He insisted on oversight by a board of leading lay people, with all staff members — including himself — on fixed salaries.

He said his salary currently is $39,500 annually, with fringe benefits such as hospitalization making it worth $42,000. He also gets some additional, variable income from his newspaper columns and his father's farm estate. Royalties from his books lately all have been contributed to Christian education.

"We have insisted on the highest possible standards of financial ethics, business procedures and spiritual principles in the business affairs of our evangelistic association," Graham said in his recent 2,800-word statement.

"WE HAVE taken extra precautions to be certain that everything is done with complete integrity so no dishonor might come to the name of Christ."

However, his long-time clean-cut image makes him a tempting target, and a new book by a Los Angeles radio newsmen, Chuck Ashman, The Gospel According to Billy, published by Lyle Stuart Inc., even purports links to organized crime — theorized from Graham's past conversion of some ex-convicts.

Of some of the recent insinuations, Graham said, "I really don't understand it. It mystifies me."

Bennett says he has "served on many boards but (I) have never been associated with an organization that has such high standards of business procedure and financial controls" as the Graham organization.

Nevertheless, because of the recent flap, Graham said he plans to urge his organization's board to start issuing fuller, more detailed annual financial statements "so everybody will know exactly where the money goes and just how it comes in," whether or not they're interested.

Evangelist rehashes old book in new study, publisher says

By James Robison
Chicago Tribune

Evangelist Billy Graham — fresh from a controversy surrounding a $22.9-million fund allegedly held in secret by his organization — now finds himself embroiled in charges that his latest book is nothing more than a rehash of a 1955 best-seller.

The coincidence between Graham's latest book How to Be Born Again and his book World Aflame, published a dozen years ago by Doubleday, has so incensed Doubleday that the publisher is demanding an immediate explanation from Graham and from his new publisher, Word Inc., a division of ABC Television.

When asked if legal action is being considered by Doubleday, Gerard Toner, the publisher's assistant general counsel, said "legal remedies are available" but such action would not be contemplated until after meetings with Word Inc.

Word editors admit that by their own count about 17 per cent of the new book is lifted from the old.

But, says Word President Gerald McCracken: "We feel the book we published is in no way a conscious duplication of his (Graham's) other works. Obviously, there are only so many ways in which you can write or preach about the same beliefs you've held for so many years."

Toner said Doubleday reviewed the two books for about a month before sending a letter to Word. Though he refused to say how much of the old book was found in the Word book, he said, "Let's just say we found a sufficient amount of material taken from World Aflame to make us very upset. We feel it is damaging to our book, which is still in print."

But a side-by-side comparison of the two books shows strong similarities in some word-by-word repetitions and overall organization of some chapters.

CHAPTER THREE OF Graham's new book is titled "Does God Really Speak to Us?" including subheads on "God Speaks in Nature," "God Speaks in Our Conscience," "God Speaks in Scripture" and "God Speaks in Jesus Christ." His Doubleday book includes a similar chapter titled: "How Does God Speak?" with subheads "Revelation in Nature," "Revelation in Conscience," "Revelation in Scripture" and "Revelation in Jesus Christ."

Comparison of portions in a new chapter called "What is This Thing Called Sin?" and an old chapter called "Man's Fatal Disease" shows a definite similarity.

"Where did sin begin and why did God allow it?" Graham writes in his new book. "The Bible hints at the answer to this riddle when it teaches that sin did not originate with man, but with the angel whom we know as Satan."

The old book states: "The puzzling question is: Where did evil and sin originate and why did God allow it? The Bible teaches that sin did not originate with man, but with the angel whom we have come to know as Satan."

Any action against

Word at this time, Toner said, could surround Graham's alleged violation of a contract with Doubleday that granted the publisher publication rights for anything in his old bestseller World Aflame.

Some questions have been raised about the new book's being in violation of Federal Trade Commission rules that require previously published material issued under a new title to be identified as such. The new Graham book makes no mention that it is similar in many respects to the older World Aflame.

Graham has defended the financial integrity of his ministry, noting that "I can assure you that your contributions are handled legally and with the highest sense of Christian ethics and spiritual concern."

Letters-To the Religion Editor:

Graham slurred

Your Aug. 27 article on Billy Graham seems completely one-sided. Reading between the lines, I surmise the Knight-Ridder chain or its Charlotte Observer editor may have been trying to defame this minister since February, and has come up only with this "secrecy" innuendo.

Perhaps unbiased reports would find that most churchmen approve the purpose, collection and preservation of the funds.

A cult is . . .

I believe Dr. Walter Martin, author of Kingdom of the Cults, gave a very good definition of a cult. He wrote:

"A cult is a group of persons gathered about somebody's interpretation of the Bible. It always claims to be in some way or another in sympathy or harmony with Christianity, but it ends up by having one common trait . . . a denial that Jesus Christ is God in human form."

Rule challenged

In the Aug. 20 Letters To the Religion Editor — Morris A. Nuttall sent in his "rules of life." I thought they were all very good rules except for one: "Don't go around people that bother you."

As a Christian, I must disagree. Jesus commanded us to "Love one another."

SOVENIA BRUTON
Artesia

Jesus did not command that we love everyone, except those that bother. Since He was tempted the same as we are, I am sure that in His humanness at times He was bothered. But He always reached out in love.

Forecast for Sunday
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Expect a great deal of change this year. Focus on becoming a more effective person rather than on making money—then the financial problems resolve themselves with less strain. Relationships are lively, up and down, require true loyalty. Today's natives have latent abilities that rarely show until a crisis looms. Those born this year before 8:30 a.m. EDT will be dedicated to public causes instead of personal careers; those born later discover, use new theories.

Deregulation of airlines called vote of confidence

A deregulation bill in the Senate would, with qualifications, allow airlines to raise regular fares up to a cumulative 5 per cent and cut them up to a cumulative 35 per cent. The base fares on which the changes would be made are current fares adjusted for operating cost increases.

lative limit is undesirable on the upside since it continues government involvement in complex questions of determining operating cost increases.

Airlines that are the only carrier in a market wouldn't have any unregulated upside movement in the Senate bill.

Commuter airlines support the legislation because it would make them eligible for subsidies, loan guarantees and other benefits while retaining their exemption from fare and route regulation.

Schuman says fears of damaging cut-throat competition are exaggerated and says deregulation proposals call for gradual and carefully monitored moves away from government control.

She says deregulation wouldn't cause smaller cities to lose air service. It's not hard for airlines to abandon service to a city now and the CAB doesn't regulate frequency of service, she said.

Under deregulation, cities served by regulated carriers would be assured of service even if it requires a government subsidy. Although the service might be provided by a small commuter airline that can often provide more frequent and attentive service than a large airline, Schuman said.

The White House official said no evidence exists to back the contention that short-haul service is supported by an airline's more profitable long runs and that deregulation would upset that supposed "cross-subsidization."

Schuman said fare discounting is heavily proscribed with a regulated structure, and "airlines shouldn't have to go to the CAB on hands and knees to lower fares."

"Cynics might argue that the recent proliferation of discount fares is to head off deregulation."

Critics of fare regulation argue that competition based on frequency of service and amenities causes overcapacity and higher costs.

It's No Polish joke, singer insists

Vinton—Liberace—Chopin show

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Bobby Vinton says the big TV networks are laughing at his idea for a musical special with Liberace filmed at Chopin's home in Poland.

But the veteran singer, whose syndicated television show is broadcast in about 90 cities, says he's not discouraged. He says he's been laughed at lots but always got the last laugh.

"I want to do it with a major network," Vinton said in a recent interview. "It's such a natural. You know, we'll go to Chopin's home, where great music was composed. Liberace will play on the piano. And we'll sing a song together."

It's the second time around for Vinton, who had more No. 1 hits between 1962 and 1972 than any other recording artist. He sold 30 million records, basing his appeal on schmaltzy but catchy tunes like "Roses Are Red" and "There, I've Said It Again."

But when the hard rock groups became popular, Vinton was dumped by the record companies and was back to working as an opening act for the "name" performers.

Then two years ago, he resurrected his career with "My Melody of Love," which captured the hearts of the country's Polish population.

As a young man, Vinton said, he had "the most successful dance band in the Pittsburgh area." He arranged the music and played saxophone. And when the big stars came to town his band would back them up.

His band landed a recording contract but stuck to the traditional big band sound.

"We're going to drop you," he recalled one executive saying. "They want singers; they don't want big bands."

But Vinton pointed out that the company owed him two sides. He sifted through the executive's reject pile and discovered "Roses Are Red." He thought the tune a natural hit and in 10 minutes recorded it and the flip side, "Mr. Lonely," a song he had written himself.

After a month nothing had happened. Vinton started hustling. He bought 1,000 records from a Pittsburgh distributor who reported back to the company that sales were booming.

Then he visited record stores in the area, dropping 25 copies at each. He got an attractive girl in a miniskirt to go to each radio station in the city and deliver a copy of the record with a dozen red roses and a request to play the song on the air.

"And they all laughed and played it once, and boom! The thing just took off," he said. It was hit after hit for a decade after that.

A couple of years ago, he decided to make an album which he believed would appeal to the millions of people in this country who share his Polish ancestry.

"I went to seven of the top record companies, and they all turned me down," he declared. But the last company I went to, ABC Records, said: 'That's a pretty good idea. We're going to put it out.'"

"That was the Polish joke of the year, because seven record companies turned it down and it really did sell a lot of records and it put us back in business."

Garvey, Cey (and Dodgers) in form

By Gordon Verrell
Staff Writer

There may not be much of a race in the National League West — or the East, for that matter — but the rush for the Dodgers' runs batted in title is a thrilling one.

In the Dodgers' 18-hit, 10-2 cakewalk over the Pittsburgh Pirates Friday night at Dodger Stadium before 39,275 fans, the run for the club RBI title tightened.

Ron Cey clouted his 25th home run for his 99th RBI and Steve Garvey drove home three runs with two singles and now has 98 RBIs — 10 in the last seven games after going 20 games without one.

For both it marked a refreshing start to the month of September after enduring a long August.

"Let's just forget that month," said Garvey, smiling.

"It wasn't a good month for us offensively, over-all, and several players in particular. But the pitching was the key to us maintaining our lead."

The Dodgers' 14-15 record in August was their poorest since 1970, when they were 13-16, and the club batted just slightly better than .210.

Burt Hooton, without a victory in his previous five starts, reaped the benefits of the Dodgers' robust attack Friday night, the 18 hits matching their season high.

The win improved the Dodgers' advantage over Cincinnati to 9½ games in the West while the Pirates, still hopeful of overtaking Philadelphia in the East, fell six games back.

"September has always been a good month for the club and for me," said Garvey, who needs 48 hits in the remaining 28 games to reach the 200-hit plateau for the fourth successive summer.

"At least I got off to a good start for the month, but there's no kidding anyone, getting that many hits in 28 games is going to be awfully tough."

The Dodgers got off quickly against the Pirates' Jerry Reuss, when Garvey singled home two runs in the first inning.

He drove in his third run in the third inning and the Dodgers put the game away with a three-run fourth inning when they batted around for the 24th time. They added another run in the fifth and made it a runaway with their three-run sixth inning, touched off by Cey's mammoth homer to lead off the inning.

STEVE GARVEY drove in three runs and RON CEY homered and singled in 10-2 victory over Pirates.

Jerry Grote, in his first appearance as a Dodger, also singled home a run in the Dodgers' sixth.

"Reuss looked to me like he was getting the ball up more than he would have liked," explained Garvey. "Normally, he keeps the ball down, hoping to have the batter hit the ball on the ground."

Hooton breezed through the Pirates, giving up one run and four hits while striking out 10 before his arm tightened and he left after working seven innings.

"The way he's pitched, he could have easily had three or four more wins," Garvey said of Hooton, now 10-7 but until Friday night without a victory since July 31. "We just didn't get him very many runs."

"Tonight," said Hooton, "I didn't need that many."

Hooton wasn't the only man to frustrate the Buccos. Home plate umpire Bruce Froemming, who earlier this season was the center of a full-scale tussle involving Pittsburgh, tossed out relief pitcher Rich Gossage after a shouting match following the fourth inning.

Presumably, Gossage objected to some of Froemming's calls when Dusty Baker drew a bases-loaded

Sixth loss in row

Garcia sinking with Angel ship?

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

CLEVELAND — Dave Garcia has a contract through next season to manage the Angels. He expects to fulfill it.

"I have signed the contract," said the man who was selected manager July 11. "I know other people have signed contracts and haven't been around at the finish, but I expect to be here next year."

There have been a lot of "other people" with the Angels. In Harry Dalton's six years as Angel general manager, he has fired four managers. Sooner or later, Garcia will become the fifth.

The way the Angels have been playing lately, it may be sooner.

Friday night the Angels were beaten 3-1 by Cleveland, their 11th loss in 14 games and sixth in succession as they fell eight games under .500 for the first time this year.

The only difference in the latest loss — which went to Paul Hartzell (6-9) — was that for the first time in 12 games the Angels did not commit a fielding error.

But they made offensive errors. Three times they got the leadoff man to second with no outs and did not score. In the seventh inning they managed to load the bases with nobody out, but reliever Pat Dobson struck out Bobby Bonds and Jim Kern did the same to Tony Solaita and Don Baylor.

It was no new experience for Bonds. He has struck out with runners on third in four of the last five games.

Then there was the first inning when Cleveland starter and winner Jim Bibby walked four consecutive batters, but leadoff walker Jerry Remy was thrown out stealing second when he overslid the bag.

The lone Angel run finally scored on Bonds' two-out single in the ninth.

Cleveland scored on Andre Thornton's two-out two-run homer

Angel of the Day

THAD BOSLEY doubled, singled, walked twice and scored in 3-1 loss.

in the first and a Rick Manning RBI single up the middle in the eighth.

"Errors are part of the game, but when you see the type we are making it is difficult to understand," said Garcia, aware that his team could have won 12 of its last 14 games if it could avoid stupid mistakes.

The eyes have it

Cuban Alberto Juantorena wanted to be certain of his margin of victory over Kenya's Mike Boit in Friday's World Cup 800 meters race — so he checked it himself. Juantorena's time was 1:44, just .56 of a second behind his world record, and one-tenth of a second ahead of Boit.

Juantorena holds off Boit; U.S. leads world

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — The United States led East Germany by two points Friday after the first day of the inaugural World Track and Field Cup, but Cuba's Alberto Juantorena stole the night's glory.

Juantorena, running for the Pan-American team, edged his Kenyan rival Mike Boit by one-tenth of a second in a thrilling finish to the 800 meters.

More than 30,000 fans at Rhine Stadium were on their feet as the amazing Cuban strode home in 1 minute 44 seconds — only .56 seconds slower than the world record he set at the University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria 12 days ago.

U.S. athletes won three of the seven men's events. Ed Moses took the 400-meter hurdles in 47.58, Steve Williams the 100-meter dash in 10.13, and Arnie Robinson captured the long jump with a leap of 28 feet, 10½ inches.

East Germany won the shotput with a heave of 71 feet 4 inches by Udo Beyer, and it also took the gap when Wolfgang Schmidt upset Olympic champion and world record holder Mac Wilkins of the United States with a toss of 221 feet 1½ inches. Wilkins finished second with 218½.

The United States had 47 points and East Germany 45.

The Africans are back in full world competition for the first time since their walkout from the Montreal Olympics more than a year ago, and Juantorena and Boit clashed for the second time in a week.

The Cuban won by a full second at Zurich last week. This time Boit almost held him.

Juantorena came down the straight with Boit at his shoulder. There was virtually nothing between them, but the African was unable to find the extra inches of speed he needed to win.

"It was the hardest race I have ever run," Boit said.

"This is my last race this season, and I am very tired and therefore very happy to have won," huffed Juantorena. "Boit is a superb competitor, and it is always very difficult to race against him."

The Africans had to wait until near the end of the evening for their first victory, but then little Miruts Yifter of Ethiopia came pounding home in 28:32.3 to win the 10,000 meters.

Yifter came only to the shoulders of his big rivals — Joerg Peter of East Germany, Jos Hermens of the Netherlands, running for Europe, and Detlef Uhlemann of West Germany.

The African raced into the lead on the back straight of the final lap and gradually widened the gap to about 15 meters at the finish. Peter was second in 28:34.0, and Hermens was third in 28:35.0.

Moses sent the U.S. squad off to a flying start with his spectacular win in the 400-meter hurdles at the start of the night.

The big, bespectacled athlete from Atlanta led from the start and came home 1.25 seconds ahead of East Germany's Volker Beck.

Moses was .12 seconds off his world record.

"I could have run faster if the weather had been a little warmer," he said.

Nastase can't handle Barazzuttior his own temper, either

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Top seeds Bjorn Borg and Chris Evert advanced to the third round but Ilie Nastase let his temper get the best of him and was upset by little-known Italian Corrado Barazzutti in Friday's play at the $462,420 U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Nastase, the fiery, seventh-seeded Romanian, kicked a ball into the stands, gestured obscenely at a television camera, led a mock cheer from the audience when one of his protests was upheld and delayed play for five minutes while he bickered with umpire James Sullivan over a let call. All of which produced sloppy, lackadaisical play that resulted in a 6-4, 6-4 triumph for Barazzutti, a 24-year-old clay court specialist.

Borg and Spain's fifth-seeded Manuel Orantes won in straight sets. The top-seeded Swede, playing at less than full strength because of a strained right shoulder, disposed of John James of England 7-5, 6-4, while Orantes trounced Fred Stolle of Australia 6-2, 6-2.

Brian Gottfried, the No. 3 seed from Lauderdale, Fla., had a harder time of it but managed to get past Marty Riessen of Chicago 7-5, 2-6, 6-3. Veteran Stan Smith, the 16th seed from Sea Pines, S.C., was not so fortunate, losing to qualifier Michael Fishbach of Great Neck, net. The net judge said no, and the umpire did not overrule. Nastase stalked about the court trying to plead his case—to the net judge, the umpire, Barazzutti. All he got for his efforts was a warning from

N.Y. and his odd-looking, homes-trung racquet 6-0, 6-2.

In women's second-round play, top-ranked Chris Evert overwhelmed Pam Whyteross of Australia 6-0, 6-0 in 36 minutes; fourth-seeded Sue Barker of England beat Iris Reidel of West Germany 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, and seventh-seeded Billie Jean King — making her tournament debut after a first-round bye — outlasted 18-year-old Anne Smith of Dallas 6-3, 3-6, 7-5.

Nastase's antics were no surprise. All last year he feuded with opponents and fans and bickered with linemen and umpires, so the crowd at the Stadium Court seemed poised for the explosion.

It came in the seventh game of the first set when Nastase believed that one of his serves ticked the umpire Sullivan to play on or else be penalized a point. From that point on, Nastase was in trouble. Although he scored five straight points to pull out the game, his concentration was not the same. He missed many easy shots and gave up quickly on others which may have been within reach.

His wife, Nikki, and manager, Mitch Oprea, left early in the second set. The score was only 6-0, 2-1, but they had seen more than enough.

"He's blowing it," Nikki Nastase said succinctly.

"Nobody can tell when it will happen, but there's nothing anyone can do about it," Oprea said of Nastase's outburst. "He changes, becomes more tentative. Once he starts losing, everything looks bigger, harder. He doesn't choke. He tries, but he doesn't take chances."

For the 24-year-old Barazzutti, who had never gotten past the first round here, a tentative, sloppy Nastase was easy prey.

"He made many volleying mistakes. He didn't play very well, either in back or at the net."

Barazzutti was not very optimistic going into the match against the seventh-seeded Romanian.

"I was nervous, for everything — the tournament, the crowd, Nastase," he said. "I think I can't win. This is a big victory for me."

Evert continued to breeze through the early rounds of the women's draw. She has now won her first two matches in straight sets, winning three of the sets at love and giving up just one game in the other.

In night matches, Jimmy Connors, the No. 2 seed and defending champion, celebrated his 25th birthday by defeating Bob Lutz of San Clemente 6-2, 6-2 and Guillermo Vilas of Argentina posted his 41st consecutive triumph on clay by disposing of Gene Mayer 6-3, 8-0.

Irwin still sizzling, tied for World Series lead

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Hale Irwin, who gained a spot in this field only with a win last week, dropped the final shot of the day for a birdie on the 18th hole and, with a three-under-par 67, joined Ray Floyd and Tom Weiskopf in a tie for the first-round lead Friday in the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

Irwin, playing with Weiskopf in the last two of the day, put a 15-foot birdie putt in on top of Weiskopf's 20-footer on the final hole to make it a three-way tie in a chase for the richest prize in golf, $100,000, which will go to the winner on Monday.

Weiskopf, like Irwin a qualifier only last week, had a birdie-birdie finish to get his share of the top spot, while Floyd followed a critical putt on the eighth with a string of three consecutive birdies.

"That putt on the eighth was critical," said Floyd, winner of the Byron Nelson and Pleasant Valley Classics earlier in the season. "It very possibly was the key to the whole round."

One stroke off the pace at 68 was quiet Mark Hayes, winner of the Tournament Players Championship, who said he "felt like I played pretty bad. I scrambled well. But I've got to hit the ball better if I hope to finish."

Defending champion Jack Nicklaus, PGA champ Lanny Wadkins and three foreign players were at 69, one under par on the rain-drenched, 7,180-yard South course at the Firestone Country Club.

Globe-trotting Gary Player of South Africa, who calls this "the toughest course we play," Graham Marsh of Australia and young Severiano Ballesteros of Spain, also shot 69.

"That's a good opening round," said Nicklaus. "I played a pretty good round of golf."

The possibility of another Nicklaus-Tom Watson confrontation, as in the Masters and British Open, seemed remote, however.

Watson, who won those two match-ups and is trying to protect his money-winning lead from the challenging Nicklaus, could do no better than a 72, two over par and five off the pace. U.S. Open champion Hubert Green had the same score.

The start of the day's play was held up for 35 minutes by a pounding rainstorm that left the long, tough course drenched.

Irwin was the only man in the field of 20 to escape without a bogey.

Clampett nips Games in State Junior Golf finals

David Games has played some outstanding golf this summer. But there was always someone playing a little bit better.

Games, a 17-year-old senior at Bellflower High, Friday finished second in a major amateur tournament for the fourth time this year, dropping a one-stroke decision to Bill Clampett at the California Junior Golf Championship at Whittier's California Country Club.

Clampett, of Carmel, who was runnerup to Games in the tournament last year, entered Friday's final round with a one stroke lead. Both golfers carded 74s, Clampett finishing at 217, Games at 218.

matched par with 72s during the first two rounds, held a one-stroke lead entering the 14th hole. However, he double-bogeyed and Clampett bogeyed to throw the match into a tie.

The stalemate was broken on the 17th hole when Clampett parred and Games shot a four.

Earlier this year Games has finished second in the CIF State, the National Junior and the Junior World tournaments.

Bill Glasston shot 72 for a third-place total of 220 while Tracy Nagasaki carded a 69 — the best round of the tourney — to climb into fourth place at 221.

Skip Irwin of Long

Beach shot a last-round 79 for a total of 231.

Upsetting experience

Ilie Nastase was upset Friday — in more ways than one. The fiery Romanian (left) was his usual self during second-round play at the U.S. Open, disrupting play with tantrums, gestures and insults. A bit more unusual was the final result of the match, a 6-4, 6-4 victory for unheralded Corrado Barazzutti of Italy, who staged an emotional show of his own after the surprising triumph.

Oosterhuis, Upsets highlight third round of U.S. Amateur FLINT, Mich. (AP) — Gary Groh continued to celebrate his homecoming Friday, shooting a six-under-par 66 to share the second round lead of the $100,000 Buick Open with British pro Peter Oosterhuis.

"I want to play well in Michigan," said Groh, who hails from Bridgman in the southwest corner of the state. "Mentally, I get pumped up a little more because I want to do well in front of familiar faces. But I don't ever try to play bad."

PA. (AP) — Tim Bond, a school teacher from Aberdeen, Wash., stunned defending champion Bill Sander on a third sudden death hole and triggered a rash of upsets Friday in the third round of the 77th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship.

In addition to Sander, four of his U.S. Walker Cup teammates wilted in the 90 degree heat and intense humidity on the 6,958-yard Aronimink Golf Club course in suburban Philadelphia, including Fred Ridley, Haines City, Fla.

Among the U.S. Walker Cuppers sent packing

Ridley, the 1975 Amateur winner, was eliminated by Hal Sutton, Blanchard, La., 3 and 2.

The British Walker Cup team, soundly thrashed last weekend by its American counterparts, surprisingly moved five players into the fourth round of this quest for America's top amateur golf prize.

Gordon Murray, Barhead, Scotland, a portly 40-year-old, eliminated the sentimental favorite, 58-year-old Dale Morey of High Point, N.C., 2 and 1, to lead the British charge.

Laguna Beach golfer loses in Seniors final

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Earl Burt of Paradise Valley, defeated a fellow Californian, Frank Hardison of Laguna Beach, 1-up, to win the World Seniors Golf Championship Friday.

The contest ended a full week of match-play competition on the par 72, 6,550-yard Broadmoor East course.

Hardison took a 3-up lead on the front nine, winning three of the first four holes. But coming back, Burt won the 10th, 14th and 15th to even it up.

They halved the 16th and 17th, and on the par-5, 554-yard 18th the 60-year-old Hardison took four shots to get on the green, then missed a 12-foot putt, rolling it to the right of the pin by about three feet.

Burt, 56, got on the green in three, rimmed the cup with his first putt but tapped it in after Hardison missed his 12-footer.

Hardison was the tournament medalist.

For the 18 holes, Burt shot a three-over-par 75, while Hardison finished with a 76.

It was the first competition for both in the 18-year-old tournament.

Stacy's course record 65 gives her big lead

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Hollis Stacy set a course record Friday, firing a seven-under-par 65 to take a commanding five-stroke lead after two rounds of the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Rail Muscular Dystrophy Golf Classic.

Stacy, who was at 133, 11 under par for 36 holes, shattered the record of 67 set by Joanne Carner last year on the 6,400 yard, par 72 course.

Jo Ann Prentice was second at 138 after a pair of 69s. Jayne Blalock, one of four leaders after the first round, had 71 on her second trip and was tied for third at 139 with Betty Burefindt.

Laura Baugh shot 69 and finished four under par at 140.

Campbell: The NHL answer man

CAMPBELL

Edited by Jack Schrader

Have any questions about the past, present or future of professional hockey?

If you do, direct them at retiring National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell. He's sure to have an answer.

When asked about the violence in hockey today, Campbell said, "Violence of today is pantiwaist as compared to that of the 1930s and '40s." He added that courts have no business trying to run hockey and that the league is capable of disciplining itself the way it has done for 80 years.

Campbell said that there is no merit in merger with the World Hockey Association.

"The door for merger is no longer open," Campbell said, adding that the only way a WHA team might get into the NHL is through expansion if the WHA were to fold.

As a final prediction, Campbell talks of a pro European hockey league soon, and foresees its champion playing the NHL titleholder for a world crown.

Colts, Reynolds at impasse

The Baltimore Colts announced Friday that they had terminated their efforts to sign free agent linebacker Jack Reynolds.

Negotiations with Reynolds and his agent, John Thomas, began about two weeks ago after Reynolds refused to honor his trade from the Rams to the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

"The Colts made every effort to reach an accord," said Baltimore general manager Dick Szymanski, "but the ever-changing demands of his agent were contradictory to Baltimore Colts' policy."

Atkinson appeal rejected

George Atkinson's move for a new trial in his $2 million slander suit against the Pittsburgh Steelers and Chuck Noll was turned down by a federal judge Friday.

After an NFL game last September, Noll said, "You have a criminal element in every society and apparently we have it in the NFL, too. George Atkinson's hit on Lynn Swann was with intent to maim and not with football in mind."

In denying the new trial, U.S. District Court Judge Samuel Conti said the coach's statement "does not show Noll charged the plaintiff with a crime or that he intended to injure the plaintiff. But the statement did have the capability of being defamatory and this could be submitted to the jury."

BRIEFLY: The U.S. national swimming team, buoyed by a narrow victory last weekend over top rival East Germany, takes on the Soviet national squad today and Sunday in the first official USA-USSR meet since 1971. The Soviet Union, which managed only one gold medal for swimming in the Montreal Olympics, should be an easier challenge for the American team. The U.S. has fielded a strong squad. Team leader Dr. John Bogert predicts that "one-third to 40 percent" of the American team in Leningrad could go on to the Moscow Olympics in 1980. The San Diego Padres want to know what the professional baseball market thinks Dave Kingman is worth and, incidentally, which club might want to buy him in an impasse over Kingman's reported demand for $300,000 salary. The Padres have put the outfielder on waivers. Kingman is playing out his option and will become a free agent when the 1977 season ends. In confirming that Kingman was placed on waivers, owner Ray Kroc added: "But that's common practice. It's a probing procedure, it establishes where interest lies."

American Deane Connor, already 1977 World Star Class sailing champion, won his fifth event in a row Friday, the final run in the six-day Kiel Regatta. Connor, a 31-year-old businessman, became champion after four consecutive wins in five days, which gave him an unsurpassable point lead. It is the first time in many years that anyone has won five events in six Star Class championship races. G.C. Spencer of Bluff City, Tenn., led second day qualifying for Monday's 28th Southern 500 stock car race at Darlington International Raceway. Spencer pushed his Dodge around the 1.36-mile oval at just over 152 mph to clinch the 13th position in the 40-car field. The first 12 spots were decided Thursday with Darrell Waltrip winning the pole at 153.483 mph. L. Gov. Robert Ferguson asked the new New Jersey state Racing Commission Friday to conduct racing at Ruidoso Downs and Sunland Park. Ferguson said an "atmosphere" detrimental to racing has been created during the commission's long investigation of Fortuna Properties and the three members of the Alessio family of San Diego. The Alessios own controlling interest in Fortuna. "I have no hesitation in saying that I believe we should act to invite Fortuna Properties to leave New Mexico," Ferguson said.

American motorcyclist Steve Baker has destroyed the myth that U.S. riders are not top class road racers or a match for the European Grand Prix stars. According to the London Daily Telegraph, Baker, 25, "completely dominated" the 750cc championship and not only gave America its first world title but also finished second to Barry Sheene in the 500cc championship which makes him the most successful rider in the world championships this season. World Boxing Council welterweight champion Carlos Palomino will be a solid favorite when he defends his title against Everaldo Costa Azevedo, Sept. 13, at the Olympia.

Angel slide reaches six—

"If things like this happen every now and then you can say it is just one of those things," said Garcia, who has a 22-27 record since becoming manager. "But if it happens 12 or 14 games in a row, that is something else."

"Somebody has to be blamed so it should be the manager when the team is not playing well. A good manager gets the best out of his team most of the time."

"I feel we still have the nucleus of a fine team, but it has not played like it in the last two weeks."

Fifteen days ago the Angels went home with a 38-58 record and the knowledge that 15 of their next 18 games were against weak teams. There was talk about a last-ditch tie run. No longer.

"I have never seen a team in the big leagues play as poorly as this team has for the last two weeks," said Garcia, in his 39th year of pro ball.

Owner Gene Autry, who has shelled out nearly $8 million in the last year with the hope of buying a contender, is lost, too.

"Dave has a good background and knows what it is to play hard," said Autry. "I don't feel it is Dave's fault, but I am disappointed the young kids haven't played better. They can't even bunt."

That was evident again Friday. After Thad Bosley opened the third with a double, Jerry Remy popped up, attempting to sacrifice Bosley to third.

Autry does not expect to fire Garcia, but admits a change might be made.

"Dave said himself if he didn't do the job he wouldn't have to be fired, he'd quit," said Autry. "I don't even know if he wants to manage next year."

While being careful not to violate major league tampering rules, Autry also admitted the team might consider another manager.

One name mentioned to Autry was Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog, a former Angel coach and a personal favorite of Autry.

"I would certainly consider Whitey," said Autry. "He is a good friend of mine, a good baseball man and smart manager."

"If he were available and came to us I would certainly listen to him," he said. "But I wouldn't approach him or make any offers because I wouldn't want to be accused of tampering."

HOW THEY SCORED

INDIAN FIRST
Dude doctored. Ruizer grounded out, 2B hit. Thorman bunted to left, his 25th. Borich grounded out. Two runs, two hits, one left.

INDIAN EIGHTH
Ruizer singled, Bell grounded out, Kuiper going to second. Thorman grounded out. Manning singled, scoring Ruizer. Gary forced starting at second. One run, two hits, one left.

ANGEL NINTH
With Kern pitching and one out, Bosley beat out an infield single. Remy grounded out. Bosley going to second. Bonds singled, scoring Bosley. Solata batted out. One run, two hits, one left.

Chula Vista Handicap split

Cherry River and Austin Mittler figure to attract the most support today as Del Mar splits its 7 1/2-furlong Chula Vista Handicap into two divisions.

With the stakes being divided for the first time in the six years it has been held, the Chula Vista will be run as the fifth and eighth races on the nine-race card.

Eight horses are entered in the first division worth $22,375, seven in the second which has a $22,175 gross.

Cherry River has already proved to be the top sprinter of the current Del Mar meeting and comes off a 1:08 1/2 win in the Bing Crosby Handicap, which he won for the second year in a row.

The rest of the second division field is made up of Thermal Energy, Authorize, Mister Dan, Gorgeous Greek, Chili The Kite and Articulation.

Strongest competition for Cherry River may come from Thermal Energy. A promising son of former horse-of-the-year Ask Ask, Thermal Energy's 3-year-old campaign was hampered by injuries. Austin Mittler, runnerup to Mark's Place in the recent San Diego Handicap, will face a somewhat stronger field in the first division.

Co-world record holder L' Natural, Pikehall, Notable, Differant, Michael Navonod, Ribot Grande, Key Account and Syllabus complete the field.

L' Natural ran five furlongs in 58 seconds flat to win the All American Handicap at Golden Gate Fields last spring and will be making his stakes debut at Del Mar.

Classy trotter at Hollypark

Ima Lula, generally regarded as the nation's top trotter, makes her first appearance of the current Western Harness Racing season tonight at Hollywood Park.

The 1976 filly of the year heads a small field of five trotters entered in the $12,000 Invitational Trot. Post time for the first of 10 races is 7:30 p.m.

Ima Lula, a four-year-old Hickory Pride mare, has won six of her last seven races, the last an upset win over world record holder Pride of Carlisle at Brandywine, Del. Raceway. That victory boosted her career earnings to $287,996.

At one point in the last two months, Ima Lula won five races in a row, including back-to-back heat victories in the $100,000 Maple Leaf Trotting Classic at Greenwood, Ont. Raceway.

During that streak, Ima Lula was timed in 1:57 1/2, the second fastest mile by any trotter this year.

The rest of tonight's field includes Cuba King, August Pride, Petite Evander and Lapride Hanover.

Haughton has Hambletonian pick

Combined News Services

Billy Haughton goes after his second Hambletonian victory in a row today at DuQuoin, Ill. in harness racing's most famous and often most grueling event.

Haughton will drive Green Speed against 15 rivals in the $284,131 race for 3-year-old trotters at the Du Quoin State Fair.

Haughton, who first won the Hambletonian with Christopher T. in 1974, won it with Steve Lobell in four heats on the hot day last year. Several hours after the race, Steve Lobell collapsed from heat prostration.

Green Speed, owned by Beverly Loyds, is the early 8-5 favorite as a Haughton-trained entry with Cold Comfort, owned by H.P.H. Stable and driven by Haughton's son, Peter.

Green Speed has won 11 of 15 starts this year including the Yonkers Trot, the first race of trotting's Triple Crown.

Haughton could become only the second driver in the 53-year history of the Hambletonian to win in consecutive years.

UCLA has a fearsome freshman—but QB?

By Gary Rausch
Staff Writer

Freshman Billy Don Jackson and UCLA's search for a starting quarterback were the featured topics as Pacific-8 Conference Skywriters concluded their 17th pre-season tour in Westwood Friday.

Jackson, a 6-4, 237-pound consensus high school all-America in Sherman, Texas, startled writers at the Bruins' morning workout by manhandling several veteran offensive tackles in one-on-one war games.

Later, head coach Terry Donahue did his best to downplay the prize recruit. At one point he even claimed to have been misquoted last spring in saying he fully expected Billy Don to start.

"If a freshman proves his virtue, I don't believe he should be shielded," said Donahue. "Jackson has done well in scrimmages, but he has not been overly outstanding. It's unusual to have a freshman in that type situation after a 10 or 12-day fall camp."

Jackson stormed into the starting lineup after barely four days of practice.

Does the fact that he is ahead of two upper classmen mean Billy Don is a "super freshman"—or the talent at that spot is weak?

"It's both," answered the head coach. "With the recruiting limitations today, freshmen have to play an important role on your team. As coaches, we would rather see freshmen have a difficult time making our club."

"I wouldn't say Billy Don is so much better than the other players. He simply had outstanding coaching in high school. He has a great deal more experience as far as practice habits. He practices as if he's been in a program such as UCLA's for some time."

Donahue expects to see several other freshmen in backup roles. They are Chris Elias, a 6-4, 215-pound split end from Servite; Kenny Easley, 6-3½, 195-pound safety from Chesapeake, Va., and Arthur Akers, 6-3½, 226, linebacker from Lynn, Mass.

Another recruit who might have found an early starting assignment—quarterback Craig Landis from Napa—is hitting baseballs in Great Falls, Mont., after signing with the San Francisco Giants.

"He was unquestionably the finest high school Veer prospect in the country," said Donahue with a trace of sorrow. "I can't say what kind of impact he would have made because I never had the opportunity to coach or see him under practice field conditions. You have to live with disappointments as far as personnel are concerned."

With Landis in harness, junior Steve Bukich and sophomore Rick Bashore might have been battling for the backup role.

Bukich started at Washington as a freshman and threw five interceptions, redshirted two years ago and played sparingly last fall. Bashore played even less as a 1976 freshman but did take the offense on a near 100-yard scoring drive against Washington State.

"Anytime you don't have a veteran quarterback returning it's an area of concern," said Donahue. "As game day with Houston approaches, we'd like to settle this if we can. We may have to play both and see what happens."

Both quarterbacks are adequate runners and throwers. Now don't misunderstand me. When I say adequate, I mean both can run and throw. Neither is a John Scarerra running the football. The one who emerges as the starter will be good enough to lead UCLA to a very successful season."

There will be no alternating quarterbacks, says Donahue, "because that develops controversies."

NAPKIN NOTES: Donahue believes the Bruins will have to mature during their non-conference schedule (Houston, Kansas, Minnesota and Iowa) in order to be ready for the Pacific-8 slate. "No one will breeze through this conference race. By the time the Pac-8 season begins, teams will have to deal with UCLA. I'm not saying we'll win the championship, but we will have an effect on who does." Redshirt sophomore Ernie Saez, No. 2 left halfback behind Olympic hurdler James Owens, is the coach's choice as the most improved player. "He's improving rapidly and could challenge for the starting spot sometime during this season. He didn't have this poise in the spring." Donahue calls his second UCLA club one of the best he's ever been around. He attributes that to youth and enthusiasm, primarily from the blue-chip freshman class. There are six rookies among the top 33 on offense and eight on defense. Banning High star Freeman McNeil, running third-team behind Owens, has seen little contact work because of a neck injury. Jordan product Ricky Coffman is next in line. James Forge from Pius X is Don Pederson's backup at tight end. John Tautolo of Millikan, the brother of former Bruin linebacker Terry Tautolo, is second-team nose guard behind senior Steve Tetrick, a two-year letterman. Poly's Glenn Windom ranks No. 3 at strongside linebacker. Seniors John Fowler and Raymond Bell are ahead of him. Left cornerback Phil Hubbard is due to return in three weeks from a separated shoulder, and safety Mike Molina is out 3-4 weeks with a broken right thumb.

No. 1? You've heard this before

Defending champion Southern California is the overwhelming choice of the Pacific-8 Conference Skywriters to repeat as the league's football champion this fall.

The Trojans, who collected all but one first-place vote of the 29 participants, totaled 231 points to 189½ for runnerup UCLA.

Washington, which received the only other first-place vote, finished third with 160½ points. California was fourth (135) followed by Stanford (120), Washington State (93), Oregon State (63) and Oregon (35).

In player awards, USC and UCLA also dominated. Trojan guard Pat Howell was voted the outstanding offensive lineman, while Bruin tackle Manu Tuiaosopo received the nod among defensive linemen.

USC safety Dennis Thurman edged UCLA cornerback Levi Armstrong among defensive backs, while Trojan Clay Matthews finished two votes ahead of Bruin Jerry Robinson for the linebacker accolade.

UCLA freshman defensive tackle Billy Don Jackson was voted defensive rookie of the year, while California quarterback Charlie Young took the offensive honor.

Washington State's Jack Thompson and Mike Levenseller were voted the outstanding quarterback and receiver.

U.S. tracksters lead the world

Williams made a slow start in the 100 meters and was still trailing Eugen Ray of East Germany at the halfway mark. But the American staged a tremendous finish and edged home by .02 of a second. Silvio Leonard of Cuba was third for the Pan-American team.

East Germany took a clear lead in the women's competition, winning three out of five events and amassing 40 points. Europe had 34, the Soviet Union 32 and the United States 25.

Rosemarie Ackermann won the high jump for East Germany with a leap of 6 feet 6¼ inches, narrowly missing her week-old world record of 6-6¾.

East Germany's other winners were Ruth Fuchs, who made a final throw of 204-7 in the javelin, and the 1,600-meter-relay team. Kate Schmidt of Long Beach was fourth at 195-1.

The United States' most successful woman athlete was Francie Larriue-Lutz of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach, who ran second to Russia's Tatiana Kasankina in the 1,500 meters.

The 1,600-meter relay quartet fell back from second place to finish sixth after Kim Thomas, running third, dropped the baton at the change and lost more than a second.
